HOOVER'S VETO KILLS GARNER RELIEF BILL AND NEW MEASURE IS DRAFTED IN ITS PLACE

CORONER'S JURY REFUSES STORIES OF WIDOW, FRIEND

Verdict Has Effect of Releasing Libby and Walker From Custody But Leaves Case Where It Began Wednesday.

HEAVY DRINKING AT PARTY BARED

Sensational Testimony Reveals Acute Marital Unhappiness Between Youth and Singer.

BY A. F. LITTLEJOHN.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., July 11. (AP)—A coroner's jury which had studied the case for three days refused tonight to fix the responsibility for the death of Smith Reynolds, returning an indecisive verdict that the heir to tobacco millions came to his death from a bullet wound at the hands of a party or parties to the jury unknown.

The verdict left the case about where it was when the jury first began its investigation last Friday, but had the effect of releasing from custody Libby Holman, his widow, and Albert Walker, his secretary, who had been held as material witnesses.

No responsibility was placed upon the grand jury as a result of the verdict and it may or may not, as its members see fit, begin an investigation of its own. The grand jury meets tomorrow.

Refuse To Accept Stories.

The coroner's jury began deliberating at 8 o'clock tonight and reached its verdict at 11:45 p. m. It was signed by every member of the jury.

In returning its verdict, the jury refused to accept in full faith the stories of Libby, former Broadway blues singer, and Walker, a life-long friend of Reynolds, that the 20-year-old son of the late R. J. Reynolds, wealthy tobacco manufacturer, killed himself.

Libby told the jury she could remember none of what happened just before Reynolds was shot or afterwards for some hours, but remembered a "flash" in which she saw Reynolds with a pistol to his head, heard him call her name and saw him fall.

Walker testified Reynolds told him just a few minutes before the shot that killed the youth was fired that he was going to kill himself.

Many Suicide Threats.

Besides accounts of the events of the night Reynolds was killed, the jury heard from Libby and Walker, during a six-hour session today, a strange story of dark fits of melancholia which seized the young millionaire and during which he often threatened to kill himself.

Libby said that "seven or eight" times he threatened suicide and once had placed a gun to her forehead.

"I told him if he was going to shoot himself to kill me, too. I did not want to live without him," she said.

Mixed with her story of the events preceding last Wednesday night, when Reynolds was shot through the head on a sleeping porch of Reynolds, the Reynolds family estate here, was a tale of marital unhappiness.

Outstanding in the mass of testimony were these salient points:

1. The description of the widow,

Inability To Lift Self Shows Drunk, Long Says

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP) Huey Long gave the senate some legal advice today on how to determine what constitutes intoxicating liquor.

The Louisiana senator said he had made an investigation in connection with the senate's difficulty in determining what is intoxicating liquor and had settled the question, when a human being is intoxicated.

He quoted from Mordecai's law lectures from the North Carolina Law Journal the following:

"Not drunk is he who from the floor can rise and drink once more. "But drunk is he who prostrate lies and cannot either drink or rise."

BRITAIN EXPECTED TO REPUDIATE IDEA OF ANTI-U.S. MOVE

MacDonald To Explain That London Did Not Agree to United Front Against America.

LONDON, July 11.—(UP)—Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald will repudiate the suggestion that Great Britain is a party to the reported "united front" of Europe against the United States, when he explains the Lausanne reparations agreement in the house of commons tomorrow.

The British official position, the United Press learned from authoritative sources tonight, will be that Great Britain, France and Italy have agreed that it is "every nation for herself," although each nation "should act with due regard to each other's interests and for the general good."

It is agreed, according to this source, that no nation should make a war debt settlement with the United States to which the others might object.

British officials, furthermore, expect the United States to deal with the debt question on the merits of the individual debtors, and not as a collective enterprise.

GERMANY DENIES PART IN "GENTLEMAN'S PACT"

BERLIN, July 11.—(AP)—The so-called gentlemen's agreement reached at Lausanne brought forth tonight a semi-official government statement in which is was said that "Germany has nothing whatever to do with any agreements between England, France or other powers."

"Germany has throughout the conference consistently refused to be drawn into any combination whatsoever against the United States," the statement continued.

"Hence no such agreement has been laid before the German government.'

In the gentlemen's agreement the creditor powers at Lausanne bound themselves not to make the reparations settlement effective unless their own debts to the United States were satisfactorially revised.

While Germany indulged in hot debate about the Lausanne reparations

Judge Demands Probe Of Slaying by Police

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 11.—(AP)—A thorough investigation of the slaying of 17-year-old Thomas D. Carmichael by police here last week was demanded of the Montgomery county gand jury today as Judge Leon McCord in his charge decried officers "shooting people like rabbits."

"Put the strong arm of the law on them and, if necessary, send them to the penitentiary," Judge McCord told the grand jury.

Carmichael was turned over to Special Officer Harry Nelson at Cramton bowl by a man who said he had caught him attempting to steal his automobile. When the patrol wagon arrived, the boy broke away from officers and four fired at him as he fled across the city dump opposite the bowl.

CRISP TO REVEAL PROHIBITION STAND IN SPEECH TONIGHT

Other National Issues Will Be Reviewed in Opening of Campaign Over Radio Hook-Up.

Representative Charles R. Crisp, candidate for the United States senate, will make known his stand on the controversial prohibition question and other national issues in his radio address over a state network tonight.

At Augusta Monday, Thomas W. Hardwick, candidate for governor, made public a reply to a request for his position on prohibition, in which Hardwick said he stood squarely on the democratic national platform, favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but was opposed to the sale of liquor in Georgia and against any substantial modification of the present state prohibition laws.

Representative Crisp's campaign to win the long term seat in the United States senate vacated by the death of Senator William J. Harris will be launched over radio station WGST and a hookup of eight other Georgia stations at 8:15 o'clock, central standard time, tonight.

Refreshed from a week-end in the north Georgia mountains, the veteran house leader arrived in Atlanta Monday afternoon and spent several hours chatting with a procession of friends from various sections of the state who came to wish him success in his fight for promotion to the upper house of congress.

He was not certain whether he would return to Washington immediately after his address, although he thought it might be necessary in view of President Hoover's veto of the relief bill. He said he would talk with Speaker Garner by telephone today and then decide whether he should return for the remainder of the session. All future plans in his senate campaign depend on the outcome of this conversation.

"I made up my mind when I announced for the senate," Crisp said, "that I would not shirk any of my duties as congressman and would remain on the job at Washington as long as necessary. There were no important matters pending before my committee when I left to make my first

CITY-COUNTY PLAN GOING TO COUNCIL

Establishment of New Atlanta Political Subdivision Is Approved.

Establishment of a unified city and county to be composed of the territory now comprising the limits of the municipality of Atlanta, and reduction of the city board of education from the present body of 14 to one of five members, were recommended Monday afternoon by the charter revision committee of council.

The recommendations will go to council Monday for consideration of that body with the probability that both will be sanctioned.

Charter revision committee members, who are headed by Alderman Alvin L. Richards, chairman, declined to take actiton on another proposal to reduce council from its present membership of 39 members to 19, deciding to concentrate on the proposal to establish the city as a separate county.

Representative George A. Eckford, from Fulton county, attended the session of the committee by invitation,

Roosevelt Fights Heavy Sea On First Day of Rest Cruise

BY WALTER T. BROWN.

WITH GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT, Morris Cove, Conn., July 11. (AP)—Governor Roosevelt, wet and hungry, after battling a rough sea in a 40-foot sailboat across Long Island sound, came to anchor tonight in this land-locked harbor, a few miles from New Haven. He had traveled 23 miles the first day out.

Soon after dropping a tug that pulled his boat away from Port Jefferson, on Long Island, the Myth II, carrying the democratic presidential nominee and three of his sons on a week's vacation, ran into heavy seas. For more than four hours Mr. Roosevelt remained at the wheel, although spray drenched him and the wind howled in the sails.

"It was a great trip" was the governor's first remark. He joked with newspapermen who visited him on the bobbing deck of the yawl.

"I always was in favor of a seagoing press," he laughed, "and now we have it."

Newspapermen followed him in the Marcon., which was used by Colonel Lindbergh in the search for the kidnapers of his baby. At times high waves hid the Myth from the watchers on the Marcon.

When the yawl headed into wind, soon after leaving Port Jefferson, she carried all three sails, but before the boat rounded the lighthouse at the entrance of the cove, Skipper Roosevelt had dropped his mainsail, depending entirely upon the two smaller sails, the jigger and the jib.

After the sails had been lowered and lashed tight and the ship made ready for the night, the Roosevelts eagerly attacked their supper.

"We are having a good supper, because luncheon was scant," explained James Roosevelt, eldest of the governor's sons, and chief mate of the Myth. The other Roosevelt boys with their father are Franklin and John. Charles Briggs, of Boston, is the fifth member of the crew.

Elliott Roosevelt, the governor's second son, is not in the party. James and Briggs did the cooking. Johnny

CURTIS GIVEN YEAR AND FINED $1,000

Defendant's Lawyer Takes Immediate Steps To Appeal Case.

BY FRANCIS A. JAMIESON.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—A penalty of one year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000 was imposed today on John Hughes Curtis for obstructing justice in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

Immediate steps were taken to appeal the case.

Curtis stared stolidly as the sentence was pronounced. Then he went back to his jail cell, while his lawyer in Norfolk, Va., announced friends were raising funds in his behalf.

Lloyd Fisher, Curtis' lawyer here, said he would get in touch with Norfolk friends and try to arrange bail, fixed at $10,000, in a day or two.

W. C. Pender, the Norfolk lawyer, said funds being raised there would be used either to pay the fine—in case an attempt to get the prison sentence suspended is successful—or to pay for an appeal. Printing the voluminous record for an appeal probably would cost between $1,000 and $1,200, he said.

Strangely, the real truth about whether or not the boat builder actually was in contact with the desperate band of kidnapers he described to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh never has been established.

Technically, the jury decided he did have such contact, since the court instructed them they must so find in order to convict.

In a heated argument preceding imposing of the sentence, which Fisher sought to block by asking an arrest of judgment, the lawyer proclaimed loudly that his client never knew the kidnapers.

"He was just a man with wild dreams about boats and things," he shouted to the bench.

But Curtis, despite the hoax confession he typed before his arrest in May, announced after he was sentenced:

"I believe the information I gave the New Jersey authorities will prove valuable if they will act upon it."

For the second time since beginning of the trial, reference was made to a mysterious person believed to be in touch with the kidnapers.

"The best lead in the Lindbergh case is in a man held in an army cantonment," Fisher announced, during the course of an argument for a new trial, after the sentence. His motion was denied.

It was recalled that Frank J. Wilson, internal revenue agent, testified at the trial he had interviewed a man on Curtis' information in connection with the kidnaping, but declined to tell his name.

He said the man was thought to be "in touch with the guilty persons." Rather than disclose the name of this man, the prosecution permitted the testimony to be struck from the record.

"I started my trips innocently," insisted Curtis, before he returned to his cell, "and with a desire to help my fellow man. I shall think twice before I do it again."

If his appeal fails, Curtis will serve the sentence in the state prison at Trenton. He could have remained in the jail here had the sentence been less than six months.

HARDWICK URGES NATIONAL REPEAL

Gubernatorial Candidate, However, Appeals for Dry Georgia.

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—Thomas W. Hardwick, candidate for governor, today announced himself in favor of repeal of national prohibition, but said he would not favor the sale of liquor in Georgia and believed the present state liquor laws should be maintained.

He made the public statement in answer to a question from Stephen Pace, of Americus.

The statement follows:

"I did not include in my platform any reference to the prohibition question for the reason that at the present moment it is purely a national issue and not a state issue, and I felt that the governor of Georgia, in the present critical condition of its fiscal affairs, ought to be selected without reference to the passions and prejudices and feelings that cluster around the highly controversial subject of prohibition. For the same reason, I have so far refrained from saying anything in my public addresses on the question, as I have no desire to inject a false issue into the state campaign.

"Still, you have asked my position about this matter and I give it to you freely, willing for you to make any use of it you see fit, and I state it as plainly and unequivocally as I know how to state it.

Votes in 1913 and 1917.

"In 1913, while a member of the United States house of representatives, I voted against what has now become the eighteenth amendment, as it was then offered by Representative Hobson, Alabama, in 1917, while United States senator from Georgia, I again voted against the eighteenth amendment in its present form. I cast these votes because I am fundamentally a democrat and believe in the basic principles of that party. One of those basic principles is the fight of each state to regulate and control its own local affairs, free from federal interference; and it was impossible for me to vote for a proposal to surrender the local police powers of the states to the general government. Such a proposal is not only fundamentally undemocratic, but is subversive of the very structure of our dual government. It is, of course, gratifying to me to see the democratic national convention at Chicago return to democratic fundamentals and reaffirm its faith in one of the basic principles upon which the democratic party was founded and to which it owes its life.

"I shall actively support the democratic national ticket nominated at the Chicago convention and I stand squarely on its platform, upon which I have already stood throughout 20 years of public service and public record.

Vote Imminent.

"It becomes apparent that in the near future this question will be submitted to the people of Georgia, as well as all the other states, and will be determined at a special election to be held to select delegates to a constitutional convention in each state called to pass on this single question.

SENATE TO STUDY LENDING RECORD OF FINANCE BODY

Probe of Campaign Expenditures Also Planned; Treasury Investigation Sought.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—Two new investigations were launched today by the senate while a searching inquiry into the conduct of the treasury and federal reserve board was discussed without reaching a conclusion by the rules committee of the house.

One of the new senate committees will keep a watchful eye on the expenditures of presidential and senatorial candidates. The other is to make sure the loans of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are strictly in accord with law.

Measures launching both inquiries were adopted with little debate and without record votes.

Because of the additional burdens to be placed upon the directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, President Hoover today dispatched a special message to congress recommending that the board be increased from seven to eight members.

The president asked also that the governor of the federal reserve board, Eugene Meyer, and the farm loan commissioner, Paul Bestor, be replaced on the board of directors by successors to be named by him.

He asked that the secretary of the treasury, Ogden Mills, be retained as an ex-officio member of the board since "it is desirable that the treasury should maintain its intimate association with the corporation."

Speaking of the necessity of bringing new men into the corporation's work, the president said:

"It has within the past few days arrived at a point where there is danger of a physical breakdown among the ex-officio members in their endeavor to carry on dual duties."

Without openly opposing, two administration financial spokesmen made it clear to the house rules committee that a congressional investigation of the treasury and federal reserve board is considered undesirable.

MILLS LAUNCHES HOOVER CAMPAIGN

Roosevelt Draws Fire of Treasury Head in Boston Address.

BOSTON, July 11.—(AP)—Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, tonight opened the republican 1932 presidential campaign here with the charge that the democratic nominee, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, had no program to meet the economic situation.

Secretary Mills spoke before an assembly of republicans in historic Faneuil hall. He attacked the expressions on economic issues in the democratic platform and Governor Roosevelt's speech of acceptance.

Summarizing his analysis of Governor Roosevelt's acceptance speech, Secretary Mills said "it is apparent that in so far as relief is concerned, the governor has no program at all."

Secretary Mills said the republican administration was not responsible for the economic depression; questioned the use of the "liberal" label as applied to Governor Roosevelt; charged the record of the democratic majority in the national house under Speaker Garner, the democratic vice presidential nominee, with being in marked contrast with the "boldness"

Erection of New Edifice Seen As De Ovies Agrees to Remain

The Rev. Raimundo de Ovies will remain as dean of St. Philip's cathedral, and the long-proposed program of expansion, which embraces the erection of a new edifice, will be considered anew, it was announced Monday night following the conference of the cathedral chapter.

In a meeting marked by cordial harmony and unanimity of attitude, the cathedral chapter averted the resignation of the dean and pledged itself to a revived and enthusiastic consideration of plans which, it has been hoped, will transform historic St. Philip's into a magnificent monument to the episcopacy of Atlanta.

At the earnest behest of Bishop H. J. Mikell, presiding prelate of the Atlanta diocese, and the entire membership of the chapter, Dean de Ovies withdrew his resignation which had been tendered to the bishop and announced to the congregation of the cathedral.

Following the meeting, Frank L. Neufville, secretary of the chapter, issued the following statement:

"At the meeting of the chapter of St. Philip's cathedral, held Monday evening, on the unanimous and earnest request of the bishop and chapter, Dean de Ovies withdrew his resignation which he had offered, and surrendered other plans he had made.

"The mission, members of the chapter and other interested individuals of the cathedral present expressed their satisfaction over the dean's consent to remain in Atlanta at the cathedral.

"Substitute plans for the future were discussed in place of one recently abandoned. Much hopefulness was voiced for the future of St. Philip's and plans for further expansion were considered."

None of the members of the chapter would discuss the statement, nor could amplification be obtained from either Bishop Mikell or Dean de Ovies. In a brief comment on the result of the meeting, the dean said:

"While it is exceedingly embarrassing to recede from a position sincere-

Georgia Judge Urges Whipping Post's Return

ROME, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—Revival of the whipping post for youthful offenders and those whose imprisonment would inflict hardship upon dependents was advocated today by Judge Maddox in his charge to the Floyd county grand jury.

The jurist said he knew of numerous cases in which misdemeanor prisoners, released on probation because of their youth or out of consideration for their families, had returned immediately to a life of law violation.

In such cases, he told the jury, he believed the whipping post would serve better than a jail sentence.

SENATE SHELVES BEER PROPOSALS FOR THIS SESSION

Vote of 50 to 25 Sends Bingham Plan Back to Committee; Georgia Senators "Dry."

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(UP)—The senate shut the door abruptly today upon immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize brewing of beer, thus temporarily removing this politically vexatious issue from harassed legislators on Capitol Hill.

Protesting to the last, the persistent Senator Hiram Bingham, republican, Connecticut, saw his 2.75 per cent bill sent to rest in the pigeon holes of the judiciary committee for the remainder of this congress.

Democratic Floor Leader Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas, was responsible for the strategy which shelved the beer proposal, without a direct vote. Bingham sought to test democrats on their platform plank, calling for immediate modification of the Volstead act as well as repeal of the eighteenth amendment. He failed after several days of hammering for a direct vote.

Vote of 50 to 25.

The vote was 50 to 25 on Robinson's motion which sent the bill to the judiciary committee to determine the delicate question as to how much alcohol in beer would make it "intoxicating in fact." Robinson and other democrats insisted they were willing to legalize beer that is not intoxicating and which thereby would meet the requirements of the eighteenth amendment.

Twenty-six republicans and 24 democrats voted to send the bill to committee, thus taking a stand against a

Revolt Flares Anew In South Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 11.—(AP) Loyal troops marched toward the city of Sao Paulo from the south, north and northwest tonight to quell a rebellion which apparently had the support of most of the powerful militia in Brazil's richest and busiest state.

Provisional President Getulio Vargas, whose regime was born of revolution, meanwhile appointed a commission of 21 members to draft a new constitution for the nation. Political leaders in Sao Paulo have demanded an early return to constitutional government.

The Vargas government also extended for 15 days payments in foreign currency of interest on bonds due before September 1.

Santos, the great coffee port of Sao Paulo province, was closed to all navigation by government decree in the campaign against the rebels.

In a manifesto to the nation, the president said he "would rather die as a simple soldier defending the ideals of the 1930 revolution (which raised him to power) than accept threats of violence."

SUBSTITUTE PLAN TO FOLLOW IDEAS OF WHITE HOUSE

Controversial Loan to Individauls Clause Will Be Stricken From Legislation Now Being Drafted for Hurried Passage.

CAMPAIGN ISSUE PROVIDED IN TILT

Democrats Make No Effort To Repass Disputed Bill Over Presidential Disapproval.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—A presidential veto having doomed the Garner project for Reconstruction Corporation loans to individuals, congressional leaders made ready tonight to set a new relief bill on the road to the White House tomorrow.

An attempt will be made to have this substitute measure authorize federal reserve banks to lend to those in need, when the federal reserve board approves.

Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, will sponsor this latest bill.

Hoping to have his way in the relief legislation after all the dispute it has caused, President Hoover followed up his scorching message vetoing the Garner-Wagner bill late in the day with another aimed to simplify the additional work being put upon the Reconstruction Corporation.

He asked that the federal reserve board governor and farm loan commissioner be eliminated as ex-officio members of the reconstruction board, to be replaced by men free of other duties, and that one more member be added as well.

If at all possible, the plan is to have the senate go at the relief program again tomorrow. Wagner has his bill ready.

Loan Provision.

The provision to allow federal reserve banks to make loans to individuals, if the board approves, was introduced today by Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, sponsor of the federal reserve system, and was approved by democratic leaders of both houses, along with some republicans.

Senator Wagner said he did not believe the president would object to this, as the loans would not be made from public funds as under the provision of the former bill which was vetoed.

Any of the 12 federal reserve banks would be empowered to lend to individuals by permission of the reserve board, if the individuals could not obtain funds through the usual banking channels.

Aside from this major provision, the revised Wagner bill follows out in general the recommendations of the president in his message repudiating the bill passed last week.

Wagner got unanimous consent to make the $136,000,000 house road bill

HARDWICK ADVOCATES NATIONAL DRY REPEAL

Gubernatorial Candidate, However, Urges Georgia to Retain Prohi Law.

As governor of Georgia I would not at the most have more to do with the question than to provide by proclamation for the calling of such an election, which will give to each citizen of Georgia an opportunity to express his or her convictions at the ballot box.

"As voter and citizen of Georgia, I shall unhesitatingly stand, in such election, for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"Even if the amendment should be repealed, as I hope and believe it will be, I am opposed to the sale of liquor in Georgia, and I am opposed to the repeal or substantial modification of our present state liquor laws.

"Personally, I am a total abstainer from the use of intoxicating liquor, have been for quite a long period of time, and I am committed, for reasons of health, to a lifelong course of that character. I do not mention this personal matter as anything particularly to my credit but merely because of the persistent and widespread campaign of personal vilification and slander, on this subject, to which I am usually subjected in political contests.

"While national prohibition ought not to be an issue in the selection of a governor to aid in the administration of the fiscal affairs of the state, at this critical juncture, yet you have asked my views on this question and I have given them to you freely, candidly and without any reservations whatsoever."

HOOVER VETO KILLS GARNER RELIEF BILL

now on the senate calendar the next special order of business, announcing he would offer the unemployment relief bill as a substitute.

The new bill carries the same total as the one vetoed, $2,122,000,000. Its only difference is the elimination of provision for loans to individuals.

Substitute Provision.

It calls for an increase by $1,500,000,000 in the Reconstruction Corporation funds—to be loaned under limitations suggested by Mr. Hoover—as well as $300,000,000 for loans to states for distress, and $322,000,000 for public works.

The arrangement for prompt action was made by conference among leaders of both parties in senate and house. It was evident that all were aware the veto of today will have reverberations in the political campaign in the making.

Representative Rainey, the house majority leader, made the comment the new bill would be "satisfactory as long as we put in President Hoover's recommendations, because we are going to hold him responsible for this legislation."

In his veto message, which was held ready and waiting for the first bill to reach the White House and was sent right back with it to the capitol, President Hoover declared the Garner loan proposal "violates every sound principle of public finance and of government."

Rumors Widespread.

As the second message reached the capitol, speculation was heard as to who would be chosen to head the Reconstruction Corporation to succeed Charles G. Dawes or to fill the three posts to be open in event congress heeds Mr. Hoover's request.

There was little of the definite; but any possibility that Calvin Coolidge might be asked to fill the presidency was held to be small by Edward T. Clark, secretary of the former president. He conferred during the day with White House officials, but was emphatic in saying he did not believe Coolidge desired the finance corporation post.

The president told congress "the extraordinary heavy burdens" on the reconstruction directors had resulted in overwork, especially of the ex-officio members—Eugene Meyer, governor of the reserve board, and Paul Bestor, farm loan commissioner.

Petitioning for more help there, he said a point had been reached in days just past where danger of a physical breakdown was faced on the board.

When the bill reached the copitol again, the house leaders did not even attempt to pass it over the veto. They forwarded the presidential message to the ways and means committee, which planned to meet tomorrow to frame a suitable substitute.

A meeting of the senate banking committee was called for early tomorrow also, the leaders there planning to attach the president's program to the $136,000,000 road bill from the house which is to be given senate consideration tomorrow.

Broad Language.

Senator Watson, the republican leader, said broad language would be used in the new measure. It will not contain the controversial provisions insisted upon in the first bill by Speaker Garner, calling for loans to individuals out of the $3,800,000,000 funds of the Reconstruction Corporation.

Majority Leader Rainey predicted the new bill would pass and that "President Hoover will be held responsible for it."

The president's veto message said the Garner proposal "violates every sound principle of public finance and of government."

"Never before," said the president, "has so dangerous a suggestion been seriously made to our country. Never before has so much power for evil been placed at the unlimited discretion of seven individuals."

Back Quickly.

The veto message reached the house barely an hour after the speaker had affixed his signature. It was prepared in advance after congress late last week adopted the conference report on the measure too late for the bill to be sent immediately to the president.

Silence reigned in the house throughout reading of the message. At the conclusion the republicans arose and applauded while the democrats remained unmoved. Garner was not present. Representative Woodrum, democrat, Virginia, was in the chair as Representative Rainey moved the message be referred to the ways and means committee.

Confident the democrats could not amass the two-thirds majority necessary to override the veto Representative Chindblom, republican, Illinois, unsuccessfully sought a record vote to sustain the president. Woodrum ruled Rainey's motion was the one in order and the house approved it.

In his message the president recommended that in the new legislation the Reconstruction Corporation's capitalization be increased from $2,000,000,000 to $3,800,000,000, of which $300,000,000 will be for loans to states for care of distress where needed; that the individual loan provision be eliminated and $1,500,000,000 be allowed for loans for construction work on projects of self-liquidating character and essential aids to agriculture, and that $322,224,000 for public works construction be provided only when the secretary of the treasury certifies that the treasury can stand the outlay.

Chief Objection.

"My major objection to the measure, as now formulated," he said, "lies in the inclusion of an extraordinary extension of authority to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make loans to 'individuals, to trusts, estates, partnerships, corporations (public or quasi-public or private), to associations, joint stock companies, states, political subdivisions of states, municipalities or political subdivisions thereof."

Asserting the directors of the Reconstruction Corporation described the provision "totally impracticable and unworkable," Mr. Hoover said it would be necessary to set up a "huge bureaucracy" to handle the business.

Concluding, he said:

"With the utmost seriousness I urge the congress to enact a relief measure, but I cannot approve the measure before me, fraught as it is with possibilities of misfeasance and special privileges, so impractical of administration, so dangerous to public credit and so damaging to our whole conception of governmental relations to the people as to bring far more distress than it will cure."

High Spots in Veto On Relief Measure

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—Here are high spots of President Hoover's message to congress vetoing the relief bill:

This expansion of authority of the Reconstruction Corporation (the expansion carried in the bill to allow loans to private individuals) would mean loans against security for any conceivable purpose on any conceivable security to anybody who wants money.

It would place the government in private business in such fashion as to violate the very principle of public relations upon which we have builded our nation, and renders insecure its very foundations.

The board of directors of the Reconstruction Corporation informs me unanimously that miscellaneous loans under this provision are totally impracticable and unworkable.

It would be necessary to set up a huge bureaucracy, to establish branches in every county and town in the United States.

Huge losses and great scandals must inevitably result. It would mean the squandering of hundreds of millions of public funds to be ultimately borne by the taxpayer.

If the funds of the corporation are to be squandered by making loans for the purposes here referred to, it will be at once evident that the credit of the government is being misused . . . threatening the credit of the United States government with grave consequences of disaster to our people.

This proposal violates every sound principle of public finance and of government.

Never before has so much power for evil been placed at the unlimited discretion of seven individuals.

speech in the interest of my candidacy, but if the speaker says I am needed I will return there immediately to remain until congress adjourns. My duties to my country and state will come first and my own political future afterward."

Eight Stations in Hook-up.

Stations which will be linked with WGST for the congressman's opening speech are WFTI, Athens; WRDW, Augusta; WTOC, Savannah, WQBX, Thomasville; WENC, Americus; WMAZ, Macon; WRBL, Columbus, and WFDU, Rome. It will begin over stations in the eastern time zone at 9:15 p. m.

Headquarters for the Crisp campaign were opened in rooms 520-22-24 at the Piedmont hotel Monday morning with W. W. Dykes, of Americus, and G. Ed Maddox, of Rome, managers, in charge. Mrs. E. B. Sharpe, of Americus, will manage the office.

In charge of publicity will be Miss Emily Woodward, popular Vienna newspaper woman. She will have assisting her J. B. Riley, formerly of the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun. A battery of stenographers will be in headquarters.

Intensive Drive to Open.

Congressman Crisp's opening speech tonight will mark the beginning of an intensive drive for the senate seat in which he is opposed by Governor Richard B. Russell Jr.

Although the radio hook-up has been scheduled for an hour, indications Monday were that the first speech would consume about 40 minutes. A preliminary draft made at the Chattooga mountain retreat was considerably condensed after the congressman's arrival in Atlanta.

Political interest over the state, particularly at the statehouse and in Atlanta hotel lobbies, centered Monday about the type of speech which Georgia's congressional dean will make. In every speech since he opened his campaign, by radio, more than two weeks ago, Governor Russell has either attacked votes or acts of the congressman or defended his own administration. He has invited a comparison of the official records of himself and his opponent.

"No Straddling" Promised.

At Crisp headquarters Monday, Miss Woodward, whose knowledge and familiarity with Georgia politics is a byword in the state, said somewhat emphatically that there would be "no straddling."

Three candidates for governor are making speeches every day during the week, Eugene Talmadge, John I. Kelley and Abit Nix. John N. Holder, another candidate for the same office, will make the opening speech of his campaign over radio Saturday night at 6:45 o'clock.

Governor Russell will resume his speaking campaign with an address Thursday at Twin Lakes, near Valdosta, where the Modern Woodmen of the World are to hold a celebration. Senator John S. Cohen will attend the same affair.

Police Wound Suspect.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 11.—(AP)—Police today shot and seriously wounded John Clark Leslie, of Baltimore, when he resisted arrest on a charge of robbing a restaurant of $30, a watch and a pistol.

Peruvian Loyals Recapture Trujillo

LIMA, Peru, July 11.—(AP)—Trujillo, northern city seized last week by rebels described as civilian extremists, was recaptured by the government today, an official said, after a fierce attack by land, sea and air with numerous lives lost on both sides.

The confirmed dispatches said many prominent citizens and military officials had been slain by the revolutionists who jailed them upon taking over the city last Thursday, while an official report said loyal troops had been lynched.

The federal forces lost two lieutenants in the fighting, with two other officers wounded, but the government said it could not yet ascertain the total number of casualties.

The rebels were reported to have fled in motor trucks toward Contumza, with loyal troops at Cajamarca attempting to cut off the retreat.

NEW CATHEDRAL NOW IN PROSPECT

ly and earnestly taken, I nevertheless find it necessary to consider the claims of a people whom I have learned to love."

Concerning "substitute plans" referred to in the final paragraph of the chapter's public statement, it was learned from an unofficial spokesman that the statement meant that while the old plans for a new cathedral have been abandoned, the church building committee will be instructed by the chapter to proceed with consideration of entirely new plans looking to erection of a new edifice.

Executive Meeting Held.

The meeting, of executive nature, was closed to all but the chapter members and the high clergy representatives, but from the unofficial but authentic source it was learned that complete accord existed when it became known that Dean de Ovies had tendered his resignation because of failure of previous plans for a new and more modern church structure.

Dean de Ovies was represented as having long felt that the history of old St. Philip's, first organized house of worship in Atlanta, together with the sad state of repair into which it has fallen, demanded the erection of a cathedral which would do credit to the Episcopal diocese of Atlanta. It was due to the apparent hopelessness into which negotiations of the building committee had fallen that his resignation was decided upon, according to popular rumor, although neither the dean nor any of the members of the chapter would verify this understanding.

MILLS LAUNCHES HOOVER CAMPAIGN

and "originality" of the administration program, and said that while Governor Roosevelt's acceptance speech was "appealing" to the casual listener, it could not stand up under the "acid test of careful analysis."

Hoover Lauded.

To meet the problems of the times, Secretary Mills said, "no man living has the qualifications of President Hoover."

The meeting was under the joint auspices of the republican national committee and the Massachusetts state committee. Others on the speaking program were Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and former Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

"We find," said Secretary Mills regarding Roosevelt's relief program, "that, aside from the fact that he would plant trees where his runningmate would plant postoffices, all Governor Roosevelt has to say is that he favors the use of certain types of public works and the issuance of bonds. But he is not very sure, for the works are, 'in so far as possible, (whatever that may mean) to be self-sustaining if they are to be financed by the issuing of bonds' and no economic end is served 'if we merely build without building for a necessary purpose'."

The declarations of Governor Roosevelt and the democratic platform for sound currency were met by Mills with the assertion that "democrats in the house within the last two months voted 152 to 50 . . . to issue fiat currency."

Pledge on Credit.

Regarding the democratic pledge to maintain the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced, Mills said the house democrats "already voted to unbalance it by over $3,000,000,000 this fiscal year, and within the last four days the house has passed a bill providing for $322,000,000 of expenditures with no revenue to cover them."

Of "liberalism," Secretary Mills said, "I cannot detect evidence of true liberalism on either the democratic candidate or in the democratic party. Appeal to discontent and a program designed to catch votes cannot be confused with a bold leadership that stakes its all in a battle for the triumph of deep-seated principles."

Secretary Mills said Governor Roosevelt's "failure . . . to clean up his own party" in New York city "bars him definitely—honest, amiable and attractive gentleman that he is—from spiritual kinship with such liberal statesmen as Woodrow Wilson or Theodore Roosevelt, or that independent, rugged democrat, Grover Cleveland."

Roosevelt Rebuked.

Answering Governor Roosevelt's criticism of the administration's credit achievements, Mills cited the establishment of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, provisions for additional credit for federal land banks and banks allied with agriculture.

"Of all the credit groups that he mentions," Mills said, "the only ones that have not been provided for by the federal government are the states and municipalities. Are we to understand from his criticism that he would make the credit of the United States government available to 16,000 municipalities? If so, I say to him that if he ever gets the opportunity to carry out that purpose he will undermine the credit of the United States government itself."

Secretary Mills criticised Governor Roosevelt's tariff utterances and said that when the latter went into oil, coal, lumber and ore sections and condemned the protective tariff on those products he would "believe in the sincerity of his criticism of barbed-wire entanglements."

Tariff Plans Assailed.

Governor Roosevelt's plan to "enter into a series of bargaining tariffs according to European practice," met with Secretary Mill's disapproval. He said the republican party "holds that the rates in our tariff laws are a purely domestic question to be determined by the congress of the United States without consultation of foreign governments."

"In any event," he said, "is this the time to make our reduced purchasing power fully available to foreign manufacturers, rather than to preserve it in the interest of our own unemployed?"

Referring to the American farmer, Mills said that other than Governor Roosevelt's suggestion that interest rates on farm mortgages should be reduced without saying how it is to be done, I find nothing in his program which does not constitute a mere indorsement in principle of what has and is now being done, and nothing to indicate how he would proceed to carry out these principles."

settlement over the week-end, nine persons were killed and scores were seriously injured in political clashes in various parts of the country.

It was the bloodiest Sunday the nation has experienced during all the recent political turmoil.

At Ohlau, in Silesia, it was necessary to call out the reichswehr to reinforce the police. Adolf Hitler's national socialists followers battled with republican reichsbannermen there, and when the fray was over four persons were dead and 31 were injured.

The cabinet unanimously approved the agreement reached at Lausanne, which was strongly criticized by Herr Hitler, who asserted the three billion mark German payment it provides will not be worth three marks within six months.

Chancellor Franz Von Papen said he doubted whether the three billion mark bond issue would be floated within 12 years. If it is, he asserted, it will mean that the nation has recovered economically.

Socialist party leaders asked Baron Wilhelm Von Gayl, minister of interior, for a conference tomorrow to discuss methods of coping with the outbreaks.

PARIS EXPECTED TO DELAY DEBT OVERTURES 'TIL FALL

PARIS, July 11.—(AP)—France doubtless will wait until after the American presidential election before making any overtures for reduction or cancellation of her war debts to the United States.

Officials at the foreign office today were unable to say when the negotiations with Washington would start, but the impression prevailed that France would await the pleasure of the United States.

Under the gentlemen's agreement entered into by the creditor nations at the Lausanne conference last week the settlement which virtually puts an end to German reparations does not become effective until those creditor nations have made satisfactory agreements covering their own debts to Washington.

Parties to this gentlemen's agreement declined to reveal its text, asserting it had to be held for submission to the parliaments of the nations concerned.

France and Germany are understood to have promised to consult each other if they find it impossible to obtain revision of their debts to the United States.

In the event the United States refuses to cut the debts—the Lausanne treaty presumably will lose its force and the whole issue of reparations will be returned to its status before President Hoover announced his one-year debt moratorium last summer. This would mean that the Young plan and the Hague accords again would be operative.

WRONG COURSE TAKEN, CHURCHILL TELLS BRITONS

LONDON, July 11.—(AP)—Asserting that he knew American public opinion, Winston Churchill told the house of commons tonight that "no more unfortunate approach toward debt cancellation could have been made than the procedure adopted at Lausanne."

Mr. Churchill bitterly attacked the "semi-secret" arrangements and the gentlemen's agreement arrived at by the Lausanne negotiators. Of those persons who have railed the Lausanne treaty as a great accomplishment, he asked: "What is all the trumpeting about?"

FRIENDS CONFERENCE FAVORS CANCELLATION

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—Demands that the United States wipe out or reduce war debts and maintain a liberal attitude toward the Lausanne reparations settlement was voiced at the friends' general conference.

Rachel C. Nason, one of the discussion leaders yesterday of the national conference on the cause and cure of war, urged that the United States join Europe in a general reduction or cancellation of war debts.

The government was criticized for yielding too much to Germany.

discussing the various measures but declining to state his position on any of them.

The proposal to set up the city-county unit would give to the proposed city-county all functions now performed within the area by Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb counties. It would divorce the city from any other governmental entity, thus clothing the newly established unit with all powers given to any county in the state.

It is estimated that nearly $3,500,000 paid to Fulton county by citizens of Atlanta proper then could be diverted into the government to provide improvements or that taxes could be reduced materially, proponents said.

Reduction of the school board contemplates that one member shall be elected from each quadrant of the city, but by vote of the city at large, and that the fifth shall be the president of the board and can come from any section of the city. Members will be paid the sam as members of council and the president shall draw the same compensation as the mayor pro tem, under its provisions. Alderman Ed A. Gilliam is author of the measure. He is now chairman of the schools committee of council.

Gilliam's proposal to reduce council failed because of the fact that committee members plan to push the consolidation move, it was indicated, but he intimated that he will fight for it on the floor of council, taking the position that if the merger of th city into a city-county unit fails, council by all means should be reduced.

Mayor James L. Key believes that a council reduction should be made, and voters of Atlanta already have voted to redistrict the city for this purpose. It is highl probable that another reduction fight will be made in the forthcoming meeting of the Georgia assembly.

Gilliam's plan provided for one councilman from the 13 wards as now established, an alderman from each quadrant and one from the city at large. Council members would be elected by the wards they represent, under the plan and aldermen by vote of the entire electorate of the city.

Action on a proposal to set up a budget commission composed of the mayor, comptroller and chairman of the finance committee, which would be clothed with authority to draft budgets and to give it power to dictate a bugetary policy, was deferred pending further study. Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth ward, was author of that measure.

If the consolidation into a unit of Atlanta and that portion of Fulton and DeKalb counties which now lie within the municipality is approved, the territory would administer its own school system, collect and disperse its own taxes, give its own police and fire protection and perform its own sanitary functions.

Brazil Seeks To Halt Sao Paulo Rebellion

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 11.—(UP)—Large scale military operations to quell a revolt in the rich and powerful state of Sao Paulo were ordered by the government tonight. The cruiser Rio Grande do Sul sailed under forced draft for Santos, chief port of Sao Paulo state, with 800 soldiers aboard. Thousands of other soldiers converged on the city, largest in southern Brazil, from nearby loyal states preparatory to a decisive drive.

The rebels, who maintained that their only object was to force the restoration of a constitutional government, seized control of the Sao Paulo garrison yesterday and distributed arms and ammunition to the civilian population supporting them. General Isidoro Dias Lopes was the apparent leader.

RAILWAY EMPLOYES ACT FOR PUBLIC WELFARE
CENTRAL OF GEORGIA

A great and significant movement for the public welfare is the formation throughout the country of voluntary organizations of railway employes to interest themselves in public affairs. Its results will be protection of tax monies, preservation of highways, and the safeguarding of persons and property on those highways. With such purposes the movement deserves and is receiving support and co-operation from the general public, indeed in many states taxpayers, not employed by the railroads, are joining such organizations.

There is no secrecy about these associations of railway employes. Their meetings are open, their aims and objects are made known to all. They seek only that which is their right and which is to their own best interests—equitable treatment by governmental authority, and a square deal for the railroads. Given this the railway industry will improve, and along with it will come direct benefits to the whole people.

Heavy and high-speed motor vehicles operated for individual proft are destroying the highways, built by tax money, and are depleting public treasuries. Such vehicles also threaten the safety of the private user of the highways. Moreover, the private automobilist pays an entirely disproportionate share of the cost of highway construction and maintenance through gasoline and tag taxes.

In asking for the removal of these inequalities the organizations of railway employes are performing a public service.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

H. D. POLLARD,
President and General Manager.

'SELF-HELP' DEPOT WILL OPEN TODAY

Egan Park To Be First To Benefit Under County Relief Plan.

Fulton county early this morning will inaugurate a plan by which it is hoped hundreds of needy families whose heads are out of employment will be given an opportunity of providing for their dependents by doing actual work for wages which will be paid in scrip. The new plan, known as the "self-help" system of relief, will go into effect in the Egan park district at 7 o'clock this morning.

Every available job in the district will be assigned to male heads of families who report at the Egan park depot, which will be located on Whipple avenue, it was announced Monday by Walter B. Stewart, Fulton county commissioner. Where the head of the family is a woman or a man physically disabled scrip calling for food will be distributed, it was said.

On Wednesday morning another "self-help" employment and food depot will be opened in the Lakewood Heights section, where the same plan will be followed.

Thursday a depot will be opened in the Cook's district of Fulton county; and next Tuesday one will be established at Adamsville. If it is found necessary, Mr. Stewart added, one also will be located in the Buckhead district.

576 Families Destitute.

According to figures furnished the county commission by the charity organizations there are 576 families destitute in the county. It is the plan of the commission to purchase such staples as meal, flour, lard, meat, coffee, sugar and vegetables to be used for provisions which may be bought at cost by the heads of families who are given scrip in payment for their work, under the "self-help" plan. It is proposed to give every man possible at least two days' work a week, the labor to be of a varied nature ranging from weeding cutting, grading, grass cutting on the golf courses, and other public improvement.

In this manner, Mr. Stewart pointed out, heads of families may actually earn their livelihoods and thus escape the stigma of being forced to seek alms. The plan, the commissioner added, will be carried out until the city and county have come to agreement on the proposal for a centralized system of charity relief, which it is hoped will be at an early date.

Believed To Be Best Plan.

The county commission believes that the "self-help" plan of relieving distress among the hundreds of families who have no other means of providing themselves with the necessities of life is the best solution available. Mr. Stewart pointed out that it not only will render substantial aid to destitute citizens of the county, but will do so in a manner which will stimulate the morale of the community by providing a medium of "mental relief" from the despondency caused by unemployment.

The food to be offered in return for the scrip "wages" will be plain, he admitted, but of the best grades to be purchased. It will be bought in carload lots and distributed to the workers at low cost, so that the families will find themselves being assisted in a measure commensurate with everyday labor.

Families whose heads are incapacitated or where a mother is the head will not be denied their allotment of relief through the food depots, it was said, although the plan contemplates primarily the relief of all destitute citizens through the medium of assigned labor. Women, however, who are heads of families, will not be forced to do manual labor for their scrip, but will be taken care of in cases where the need is obvious.

Friend for Thirty Years Lauds Turner's Record

One of the most cherished letters of congratulation to be received by William M. Turner, veteran foreman of The Constitution press room, was one which came Monday from A. J. Gallien, vice president of the R. Hoe & Company, Inc., of New York and London, printing press equipment manufacturers. Mr. Gallien has known Mr. Turner for 30 years.

In his letter the New York executive stated:

"It gives me a great thrill to read of the report that on June 28 you finished 54 years of continuous service with The Atlanta Constitution, and few there are who can record such an achievement and fewer still can round out so many years of service and still be as energetic, dependable and progressive as you have been and still are. It is a very pleasant memory to me that I have had the privilege of calling you a friend for all of 30 years.

"Hearty congratulations on your anniversary and with sincere best wishes for many more years of successful activity to follow."

FLUTTERING MOTHS FILL NEW YORK AIR LIKE SNOWSTORM

NEW YORK, July 11.—(NANA) Street cars in some western cities have been stopped by swarms of grasshoppers, blown in by one of those winds which does nobody any good, but a plague of white moths winging in the air like a snowfall stopped the whole of New York when it made a sudden and bewildering appearance.

The moths fluttered by the thousands around the lamp posts of Fifth avenue from Washington square to well beyond Central Park, and were reported in the Bronx and other sections of the city, as well as in parts of New Jersey. Every brightly lighted shop had hundreds glued to the windows, and hundreds more dashed blindly into the headlights of automobiles and the hair of pedestrians.

Dr. Thomas J. Headlee, entomologist of the New Jersey experiment station and professor of Rutgers University, with the assistance of Carl Ilg, another entomologist, quickly gathered up some specimens and announced to a breathless public that the white moths belonged to the geometridae family. They are also known as measuring moths, because in the caterpillar stage, they hump up on a twig or leaf and then stretch out as if measuring.

The moths live only a few days and the entomologists promised quick relief. They were of the opinion that a fresh wind had swept them in, although their known habitat is in the northern states as far west as Colorado.

It was recalled that this was the third moth invasion of the city, the last one having occurred in 1909.

POLICE DISPERSE JOBLESS RIOTERS

Crowd of 3,000 Threaten To Storm St. Louis City Hall But Are Repulsed.

ST. LOUIS, July 11.—(AP)—Four men were shot and more than a score injured by flying missiles today when police used tear gas to disperse a crowd of 3,000 unemployed persons, gathered on the city hall lawn under auspices of the Unemployed Councils of St. Louis, a communist organization.

The riot started after three hours of speech-making when a movement was organized to rush the doors of city hall. Six policement were injured, several receiving broken bones. About 25 men and 10 were women were arrested and taken to police headquarters. Some had lacerations and bruises.

As the crowd broke and ran, several of the bolder spirits threw bricks and stones at the policemen, more than a hundred of whom had been mobilized. Police followed the stone throwers, hurling tear gas bombs and firing their revolvers.

The four men who were shot, one a negro, denied they were participating in the demonstration and declared they were struck by stray bullets. The most seriously wounded was Edward Gillihan, 36, He was hit in the right breast.

Many persons, including children, were thrown to the ground by the force of the first retreat and were trampled by those behind them.

The massed attack upon the city hall was precipitated when one of the speakers shouted through his megaphone:

"I want everybody here to show his spirit, because we're coming to a climax. I want 50 women to volunteer to rush the front door."

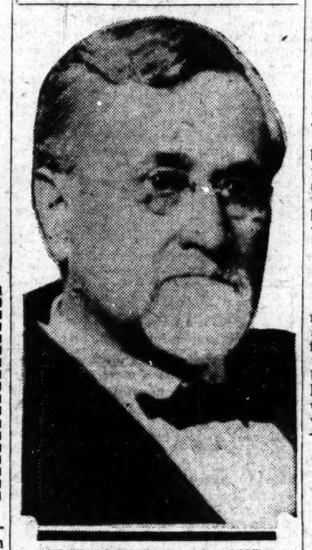

About 50 women, mostly negroes, pushed forward until they reached the doorway where police were massed five deep. Here they stopped.

"And now," continued the man with the megaphone, "I want 100 ex-service men to protect these women as they rush the door."

As the men pushed forward, a policeman hurled a gas bomb and the crowd began to retreat.

ALEXANDER J. ALMAND IS LAID TO FINAL REST

Leading citizens of Lithonia paid last tribute Monday afternoon at the Lithonia Methodist church to Alexander James Almand, president of the Peoples bank, of Lithonia, and prominent citizen, who died Sunday in Atlanta at the residence of his son, Dr. Claude A. Almand, at 717 Brookridge drive, N. E., following a short illness. Burial was in the Lithonia cemetery.

ALEXANDER J. ALMAND.

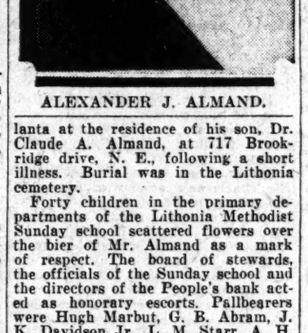

Forty children in the primary departments of the Lithonia Methodist Sunday school scattered flowers over the bier of Mr. Almand as a mark of respect. The board of stewards, the officials of the Sunday school and the directors of the People's bank acted as honorary escorts. Pallbearers were Hugh Marbut, G. B. Abram, J. K. Davidson Jr., L. M. Starr, A. H. Flake and Dr. Thomas Stewart.

Mr. Almand was conspicuous in the political, business and religious life of Lithonia and DeKalb county, and was the owner of considerable property in that section. He was the owner of one of the largest general stores in the county, and was superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school for 41 years. He is survived by two other sons in Atlanta, H. Grady Almand and Bond Almand, well-known Atlanta attorney. His wife and three other children also survive.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE DISMISSAL OF MORRIS

Dismissal of Tom Morris as superintendent of the city prison will be investigated today by the Fulton county grand jury, it was indicated Monday when Morris served Councilman George B. Lyle, chairman of the street committee, with a subpoena duces tecum asking Lyle to produce before the grand jury seven affidavits which were filed with the street committee.

Morris obtained the subpoena from William H. Spratlin, deputy clerk of Fulton superior court, and served it on Lyle personally. Morris, it is understood, will ask the grand jury to look into the making of the affidavits, which, he said, formed the basis of his dismissal.

WHEN time presses, we will serve your luncheon quickly; when you have a bit of time there is ample room for you to stay as long as you like. Sandwiches, salads, desserts and your favorite drink; probably an Ice Cream Soda. All superlatively good and perfectly served.

PROPOSALS ADVANCED FOR BUSINESS REVIVAL

UNIVERSITY, Va., July 11.—(AP) The University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs today plunged into a searching study of current economic problems, with speakers urging various proposals for the return to normalcy, and each asserting that delay means greater suffering in the end.

The economic situation came to the fore in the round-table session of economic recovery, with speakers including John T. Madden, president of the Alexander Institute; Marcus Nadler, director of the Institute of International Finance, and Paul Marzuere, New York investment banker.

Mr. Madden, warning that to wait "until November will be too late," urged an immediate solution of reparations, debts, tariff, monetary, and capital market restoration problems.

An additional warning was given by Mr. Marzuere, who said that unless the volume and price level of American business improve within the next year, there is nothing to prevent a holocaust among bondholders that would be as free from the administration's protection as the unemployed are apparently free of its assistance. He expressed the opinion that "a new period of prosperity will be born with the adoption of a national five-day week."

Mr. Nadler denied that the capitalist system has failed, but said the world is in immediate need of vision, clear understanding of the various problems, and true leadership.

SMALLER INDUSTRIES LAUDED BY PRESIDENT

SILVER BAY, N. Y., July 11.—(AP)—President Hoover, in a message today to the second annual conference on smaller industries, declared these little units of the economic system were "vitally important in the human sense," employing half of the workers of the nation.

The president's message was read at the opening of the conference, a meeting of leaders or representatives of the smaller industries of the nation. The conference is intended to provide an opportunity for executives of the smaller plants to hold round-table talks on the problems of the industrial unit their companies represent.

EPIDEMIC OF CHOLERA SWEEPING OVER CHINA

SHANGHAI, July 11.—(AP)—An epidemic of cholera, which has been severe from Canton to Peiping, is increasing sharply and large numbers are dying every day.

An intense heat wave is sweeping all China, apparently speeding the march of the disease. In the large cities hundreds of new cases are reported each day, and many hundreds of thousands have received injections of anti-cholera serum.

Stops Skin Itching In Two Minutes

This formula for skin diseases is astounding the most skeptical in the marvelous way it heals severe cases of Ringworm, Athlete's Foot, Eczema, Tetter, Itch and other parasitic skin troubles. The minute it touches the sore spot, you feel a soothing, cooling sensation; in a few days you marvel at how your skin has healed. If you suffer with skin diseases of any kind, get from any druggist a 60c box of Tetterine, and get relief or get your money back.—(adv.)

Viaduct Will Be Open To Pedestrians Today

Pedestrians may use the reconstructed Whitehall street viaduct today and vehicles probably Friday, it was announced Monday by C. E. Kauffmann, city bridge engineer. Opening of the bridge will relieve traffic congestion in downtown Atlanta as Whitehall street is one of the main arteries connecting the eastern and western sections of the municipality.

Councilman William M. Rogers, chairman of the bridge committee, announced Monday that no ceremonies would attend the opening because the committee is anxious to turn the bridge over to the public the "minute it can be used."

Rebuilding of the structure has required less than six weeks. It was closed to traffic June 1. It has been built by the Flagler company at a cost of $38,000 under a co-operative plan whereby the city and Fulton county shared equally in the expense.

SEWERAGE BOND ISSUE ADVOCATED BY VOTERS

Advocacy of a bond issue for a new sewerage system for Atlanta and summarization of the proposed amendments to the state constitution were the chief matters of interest before the monhly meeting of the men's council of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, held Monday noon at the Kimball House. Andrew M. Fairlie, chairman of the council, presided.

The need of a new municipal sewer system to cost approximately $13,000,000 was stressed in a round-table discussion led by Horace Russell. The speaker pointed to the present system as inadequate, antiquated and a menace to public health.

Henry Beaman read a report outlining the eight amendments to the state constitution proposed and which will be submitted to the voters of Georgia in the elections next November.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 12, 1932.

A HAPPY RIDDANCE.

The denunciation of the democratic repeal plank by the Methodist board of temperance and social service, under the direction of Bishop Cannon, and its praise of the republican prohibition stand, coupled with an outspoken declaration in favor of Hoover, because he is on a dry platform are not surprising.

The real intent of the straddling plank adopted by the republican convention is emphasized by the promulgation of the political bishop, who supported Hoover four years ago.

Designed to be presented as a wet plank in states favoring repeal and as a dry declaration in states favoring the existing status, the republican purpose was obviously to get the voters coming and going. And Bishop Cannon has swallowed the bait, hook and sinker.

But the straddle will not work and the doughty bishop will not carry the rank and file of his own church with him.

After three years of hardship and deprivation, and now burdened with a crushing load of taxation, which could be made much lighter if the illegal liquor traffic were made to carry its proper share, the people of the country are in no mood for evasion or equivocation.

It is a time for political courage and frankness and the democratic platform, not only in its plank on prohibition but in its position on every other issue, goes direct to the point, without any vote-getting circumlocution.

The solid south and the generally doubtful states bordering it are certain to return record-breaking majorities for Roosevelt and Garner in the elections next November, Bishop Cannon to the contrary notwithstanding.

In some respects he is a happy riddance to the democratic party, as he will be to his church when it is convinced that he is an "Old Man of the Sea" around its neck.

THE PHILIPPINE PROBLEM.

Senator Copeland, of New York, suggests that the question of Philippine independence be submitted in a plebiscite to the American people, "who won the islands."

The granting of independence to the Filipinos is more than a question of whether or not they shall be given the status of a free people. More serious is the problem as to whether such freedom, a natural racial desire, would not do them more harm than good and result in the loss of all the advantages which have accrued to them under the protection and aid of the United States government.

The question of independence for the islands must be decided from an economic and not a sentimental standpoint.

The average voter of this country knows little or nothing of the economic exigencies faced by the Philippines and in consideration of which the only wise decision can be reached.

Under American guidance the Filipinos have been brought forward from a half-savage, almost totally uneducated and down-trodden people to a condition which compares favorably with that of the modernized peoples of the world. Education is now general throughout the islands, health conditions are tremendously improved, a modern communications system has been installed and tribal animosities have been ended.

Coincident with this remarkable improvement in living conditions there has developed an economic system which has brought comparative prosperity to the islands. Unfortunately this system is largely dependent upon the protection of the American tariff, the removal of which at this time, through the granting of independence to the islands, would cause a collapse which in all likelihood would result in the undoing of much of the progress made by the islands during the past 30 years.

The decision as to how best to solve the Philippine problem must be worked out by skilled economists and statesmen.

It is certainly not one that can be safely left to a plebiscite of voters, most of whom would be in ignorance of the real problems involved.

UNBALANCED ECONOMY.

The economy bill passed by congress unwisely takes deep slashes into the revenue received by the government's departments haying comparatively small expenditures, while practically ignoring the big-spending departments.

The huge expenditures of the treasury, executive and independent office, war, navy and agricultural departments will collectively receive a cut of approximately seven and one-half per cent, ranging from an increase for the treasury department to a 14 per cent cut in the executive department.

The five smaller spenders, consisting of the interior, justice, commerce, state and labor departments, will receive a cut of approximately 20 per cent, ranging from a 12 per cent cut on the justice department to a 28 per cent reduction on the department of commerce.

In selecting this department for the largest cut, congress struck a blow at the governmental agency best qualified to be of direct and vital assistance to the business and financial interests of the country in the struggle for the return of normal economic conditions.

Through its bureau of foreign and domestic commerce it performs functions of the greatest importance at this time in promoting over-sea commerce and in facilitating all types of business intercourse with all markets of the world.

It is possible that the drastic cut in the revenue of the commerce department may make necessary wholesale dismissal of employes, or extended furloughs. It is certain that necessary official travel will have to be eliminated and the use of the wire services, vitally important to the department's activities, will be among the other economies which must be put into effect.

Under this situation the representatives of the department manning the branch office in Atlanta will no longer be able to make their regular inspection and advisory trips to the various cities in this district because of lack of money.

It is significant that both Great Britain and Canada, in making the drastic cuts last year to balance their budgets, exempted the expeditures for governmental instrumentalities for the promotion of foreign trade.

The expert assistance and advice of the federal department of commerce has been of vital importance in the upbuilding of our foreign trade. Now it is possible that if we ham-string this department while Great Britain and Canada are building theirs, we will lose many millions of international commerce which otherwise would come our way.

It would have been wiser economy if congress had cut more deeply into the appropriations of the large-spending, non-productive departments and not have chosen a department so emergently necessary during the present economic conditions for the biggest slash.

It is not too late yet to remedy this serious oversight.

Aimee's David is said to have had a quaver in his voice when he denied being a knee kisser. Who wouldn't?

It is to be hoped that the decision to take up the arms plan next at Geneva will not result in the elimination of the word plan.

When the senate "shelved" the Philippine question it should have picked out the most remote and inaccessible shelf.

The beer move is reporting to be gaining strength in congress—which is just exactly what the drinkers would like to have it do in their interiors.

Speaking of politics, we've almost come to the point where we don't care who carries the country if they'll only carry it.

A Moscow scientist finds a tribe that has been out of touch with civilization for 18 years. Some people have all the luck.

We'd soon be able to quit worry about business conditions if the economists would quit telling us not to.

A military expert says our next war will be fought with radio waves. If we don't win it, we'll dial in the attempt.

Another economic suggestion: Omit pockets from trousers and use this material for reinforcing the seat.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Sensation Books.

Books are cheaper than ever. And people are reading more than ever. A big American publisher who is looking over the European market for suitable translations told me that there is a greater demand than ever for romance, adventure and love stories. What men and women want is thrills and sensations to take their thoughts away from the cares and worries of everyday life, he said. That's the reason they are reading, he added.

Nobody can have any objection to people reading a lot, as much as possible, but this looks very much as if people were attempting to create themselves a wholly fictitious world, trying to escape, as it were, from the realities of life by seeking relief in the world of imagination.

Judging by the type of books offered in European shops, this is really what it amounts to. Writers are sure enough catering to the demand for thrills and sensations. All you see is books about violence and terrific emotions. Histories of various kinds of cruelty practiced in the course of history predominate; strange adventures in cruelty, in vice and morality are the main themes. Indications of the unstability of conditions and the neurotic state so many of our fellows are in.

Bolshevik Embassy.

Many people have a notion that soviet Russia is a sort of closed camp, where only a number of privileged persons are permitted to enter. Will you be allowed to go in? Have you no fear of the tcheka or G. P. U., the dreaded soviet political police? Are you sure you can travel wherever you like? Will it not be a case of the bolsheviks letting you see what they want and keep you away from things they do not want reported? And how about censorship, Can you write what you want? Or must you first submit your material to a bureau of censors? This is the usual run of questions one has to answer when making ready to embark on a journey into that gigantic land that is the size of Europe and America together.

If you should repeat those questions to the consular authorities before setting out, they might laugh at your grandmotherly fears. There is a daily train leaving Berlin for Moscow and another one for Leningrad. Both are jammed. German engineers, American experts, writers, social workers, French electricians, no lack of passengers. First-class passengers too, travelling in luxurious sleeping cars, cars which are more comfortable to my way of thinking than the flying ovens where you are threatened with neck-cramp and kindred ailments on the roads in America, and cheaper, too, as soon as you cross the soviet borders.

Just a few hours' wait at the consulate in Berlin, till your papers are verified and the object of your visit established. I filled out an application form with seven questions. When I wanted to land in New York last January I filled out a questionnaire with 67 questions. One of them was this one: Is it your intention to assassinate the president of the United States or any of the officers of the government? As if anyone travelling with that object in view would be so foolish as to disclose it.

Having cooled my heels in scores of consular offices in the last few years and having had ample time to study the ways and behavior of the functionaries employed there, I must say the efficiency at the Russian embassy astonished me. People weren't barked at either as if they were dogs. Humble folks quietly asked questions and were politely answered. That's more than can be said of certain European consulates, where you are expected to stand to attention half the time and are made to feel as if you are gratuitously handed a supreme boon.

"Could I go and see some of those lumber camps we heard so much about where forced labor is said to exist?" I asked.

"Certainly," was the reply, "any of them and all of them if you wish. We have nothing to hide," came the reply.

"Alone?" I questioned again.

"Perfectly alone. You are a free man in the soviet union!"

VETERANS LOATH TO BORROW FARE TO RETURN HOME

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(UP)—Recognizing the failure of the congressional plan to entice 15,000 members of the bonus expeditionary force homeward, District of Columbia officials at a conference today were understood to have discussed a change of policy toward the veterans.

During the six weeks of the "occupation" of the city by the World War veterans, here to demand that congress pay $2,400,000,000 in compensation certificates due normally in 1945, relations between them and the police have been friendly.

In any dispute between police and veterans, the police have gone to the limit of conciliation, believing that a harsh policy might precipitate serious disorders.

Congress last week rushed through a $100,000 appropriation, to enable any veterans to borrow sufficient money on his bonus certificate to get home. Hardly 5 per cent of the veterans have taken advantage of the offer, and some of those who did said they were going home to get their wives or recruit more "bonus soldiers."

You Need Never Take the Bull by the Horns If You Dehorn Him as a Calf

By Robert Quillen

The time to prevent war is long before the first hot-heads begin to clamor for it.

Conflicting policies and interest are slowly but surely paving the way for armed conflict with Japan.

If war should come, America has no reason to fear defeat. Her superior resources of men and money would make ultimate victory certain.

But victory would not bring back the dead, heal the maimed or lighten the burden of taxation.

Safety does not lie in preparation for victory, but in the preservation of peace. And America, fortunately, has it within her power to make such a war impossible.

There are three policies that will work together to give assurance of peace.

First, encourage China in her struggle against Japan. This would be good business as well as sound statesmanship. Japan buys from us less than we buy from her; China buys more. As a market for American goods, Japan has reached the saturation point; China's market, although expanding rapidly, still offers almost unlimited possibilities for development. Anything that helps China will check Japan; and China offers no menace, but only an assurance of jobs for American workers and wealth for American manufacturers.

The second policy consists in the cultivation of Russia's friendship. It is true, despite the optimism of those who think only in terms of the present, that Russia's state-controlled industry will some day deprive America of many foreign markets. But we cannot mend matters by standing aloof, and we can gain much by helping Russia to her feet. A strong Russia would not be a military menace to America, and Japan would not dare risk conflict with America if a strong Russia stood at her back waiting to settle old scores.

Finally, the third policy consists in weakening Japan economically. America, as you know, is the keystone of Japan's economic security. Denied America's market for raw silk and vegetable oils, she would be bankrupt. And that market can be closed, as many others have been.

Perhaps no such drastic action is necessary or wise. The threat of it might serve.

But this much is certain. Wise statesmanship must look to the distant future. These three policies would prevent war. And any policy, however, cold-blooded it may seem, is justified if it gives assurance of protection and peace.

There is no harm in wetting a neighbor's powder if you know he is gunning for you.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1932, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 11.—One of the major studios settles what has long been a problem by its announcement that the majority of its 1932-33 films will be made from original stories.

There's a catch . . . of course. "Originals by famous authors," says Warner's studio, so don't mail what you have had written and filed away for the big moment because you've got to have an established literary name to get over in Hollywood with an original these days. Or else . . . well, there's always an exception; but there are no originals being bought through the mails. And no stories being read that way either. They are sent back directly and the studio doesn't thank you for sending them.

Studios base this decision on a survey of the expense involved in buying the successful play, published novel or serialized story. The price is high. The material, nine times out of ten, is not suited for camera use. By the time the studio puts an adaptor on the work, hires the author to give expert advice, a scenarist to handle the camera end of it and dialogists to put in the necessary bright persiflage, it becomes a losing project before it's released to the public.

"Strange Interlude" with Shearer, Clark Gable and an all-star cast, gets a huge premiere in Hollywood, although that form of evening diversion was said to be out for the present. But in from their beach houses will flock all the loyal friends of the stars, and formal gowns will take an added interest due to the bronze quality of the beauties.

The picture is said to be an amazing revelation in new movie technique. To see this story freed from the endurance-record handicap of the original presentation will be interesting, to say the least.

Amelia Earhart Putnam, visiting the studios, is impressed with Gary Cooper's nonchalance in the presence of lions—with the difficulties of movie-making—with the number of air pictures made and to be made—with the future of the air theme which she considers still in its infancy. She met an old acquaintance, Harpo Marx, who once saved her from an autograph-hunting mob in the foyer of a New York theater. She heard those songs which Marlene Dietrich will give us in "The Blonde Venus"—first time she sings in a picture in a long, long time.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

WHY DRAG IN GERMS?

The audacity of the charlatan is astounding. He poses as a health authority and he practices as a physician. He holds himself out as Doctor Wood U. Believit, and as his warranty for that he boldly announces that he has a degree which no medical school or recognized educational institution grants. The charlatan no doubt invented his own degree. He knows his public.

Here is his explanation or definition for tuberculosis:

"A continuous spitting up of the waste products of bacterial decomposition."

Please keep in mind particularly the charlatan's acknowledgment that the waste products are of bacterial origin. In other words, something produced by germs. If your mind is capable of retaining that impression long enough you will enjoy the sentence that follows. The charlatan goes on to say:

"The germ is merely an accident. The soil must be there first. It doesn't matter whether a tuberculosis germ is present, or one that produces pus. . . ."

There is a second tacit and no doubt inadvertent admission that germs have something to do with pus—that germs produce pus.

Stick around. This fellow is humorous.

In another paragraph in the same harangue—a direct appeal to prospective customers — the charlatan says:

"The tonsils . . . there is pus in them . . . the tonsils are loaded with pus and other products of putrescence. . . ."

Again an unconscious admission that germs cause putrescence, for the juggler has already admitted that germs produce pus, and here he admits pus is a product of putrescence. It is inescapable, therefore, that germs are concerned in putrefaction when putrefaction occurs in the tissues.

The charlatan plainly implies, without putting the idea into honest words, that the toxins which he deems it necessary to "throw off" or "eliminate" in any and all illnesses, are the products of germs, and that is the nearest he comes to the truth.

The charlatan betrays his ignorance by referring to a chiropractor thus "Dr. John Doe, D. C.," whereas any eighth grade schoolboy knows it should be either Dr. John Doe, or John Doe, D. C. if that is the man's degree, but never both. Just as it should be Wm. Brady, M. D., or Dr. Wm. Brady, but never Dr. Wm. Brady, M. D. Again the charlatan betrays his ignorance by referring repeatedly to "toxic poison." Now poison is poison whether you think so in Anglo-Saxon or in Greek, and you can't make it any worse by calling it poisonous poison in both languages. If you are just airing your deep erudition for an audience of yokels, why, maybe you can win the confidence of some of them by characterizing all poisons you deal with as poisonous or toxic. But how any honest individual or organization can foist you on the public as a competent health authority is hard to understand, tho not so hard as it is to understand how the public can stomach you at all. Perhaps the organization that foists you feels that its share of the plunder you take from the gullible public is sufficient to warrant the business. But for the life of me I can't see how the intelligent portion of the public can support the racket with its patronage.

Georgia Heroes Of the World War

By Sergeant L. E. Jaeckel
(All Rights Reserved.)

Reuel V. Hanberry, chief boatswain's mate, United States navy, awarded the navy cross for extraordinary heroism and exceptionally distinguished services in the line of his profession as commanding officer of the armed guard of the S. S. Albert Watts.

On November 28, 1917, that ship, loaded with gasoline, struck a mine or was torpedoed (absolute cause undetermined), and caught fire. It was successfully beached. Later after salvage, again caught fire, made harbor, but continued to burn several days. The armed guard remained at battle stations so long as an engagement with enemy submarine was a possibility and later made every effort to salvage government property. The commander of the armed guard is regarded as having handled the situation in a most excellent manner, preventing by his own personal example of courage and heroism a panic among members of the crew.

SENATE TO STUDY LENDING RECORD OF FINANCE BODY

nor of the federal reserve board, were the witnesses.

Ballantine said while the treasury had no objection to a congressional investigation he did believe an inquiry would hamper the department in the application of the recently enacted tax laws.

Meyer likewise said he had no objection to an investigation into the federal reserve but called the attention of the committee to the fact that the senate banking committee had just completed a two-year study of the reserve system.

Representatives McFadden, republican Pennsylvania, and Patman, democrat, Texas, appeared to urge the inquiry.

Vice President Curtis named Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, chairman of the campaign funds committee and appointed the following as its personnel:

Senators Townsend, of Delaware, and Carey, of Wyoming, republicans, and Bratton, of New Mexico, and Connally, of Texas, democrats.

To look over the books of the finance corporation, Senators Couzens, of Michigan; Goldsborough, Maryland, and Walcott, Connecticut, republicans; and Glass, Virginia, and Fletcher, Florida, democrats, were appointed, with Couzens as chairman.

In the short argument over the reconstruction corporation inquiry the $90,000,000 loan to the Dawes bank in Chicago was cited frequently. Senator Couzens who sponsored the investigation, said he did not know whether an advance of this amount was justified. Senator Norris, republican Nebraska, suggested favoritism was involved. Senator Vandenberg, republican Michigan, maintained that such was not the case. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the bank was, until a few weeks ago, president of the finance corporation.

JAPANESE MINISTER SEES NO PERIL OF WAR

TOKYO, July 11.—(AP)—Viscount Yasyua Uchida, new Japanese foreign minister, told foreign newspaper correspondents today in his first interview with them that he saw no chance for serious friction between Japan and soviet Russia.

He said his relations with soviet officials during his service as head of the South Manchuria Railway was most pleasant.

FLOOD TOLL HEAVY IN WEST VIRGINIA

Between 12 and 20 Believed Dead as Streams Sweep Through Villages

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 11. (AP)—Two streams sent roaring out of their banks by heavy rains swept through a dozen mining villages early today, causing a death toll estimated at from 12 to 20 persons.

Residents along Paint and Armstrong creeks in Kanawha and Fayette counties were roused long before dawn by churning waters. Many were unable to escape before their homes were flooded.

Wrecked communications prevented an accurate check of the death list. The Kanawha county engineers' office reported 12 bodies recovered.

At least 150 of the tiny cottages usually occupied by miners fell before the torrent. The Red Cross estimated 800 were made homeless.

Dawn found a dozen or more refugees clinging desperately to improvised rafts and pieces of their homes. Bodies of others were found on banks where receding flood waters had left them.

All up and down the wreckage-strewn valleys there were refugees carrying the few remnants of their personal effects, saved while muddy waters swirled through their homes.

SENATE SHELVES BEER PROPOSALS FOR THIS SESSION

vote on the issue. Fourteen republicans and 11 democrats voted against shelving the measure.

The test vote thus showed 25 senators standing squarely for immediate modification to permit beer.

The surprise in the vote was the "wet" vote of both Florida senators, Duncan U. Fletcher and Park Trammel, who previously have voted dry. Their switch was interpreted as the result of the recent "wet" trend in their state which swept Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen out of her house seat in the next congress. The daughter of William Jennings Bryan was defeated in the primaries by a "wet" democrat.

"Sly Joke."

Turning the bill over to the legal minds of the judiciary committee to answer the question that physicians and commissions have quibbled over in vain, was taken as a sly sort of joke to get the perplexing issue out of the way. No one expects the committee, which has declined to take action on numerous beer bills before it, to do anything about the Bingham bill.

The tall and scholarly Bingham, an apparition in white today from his wavy hair to his feet, smilingly taunted his democratic colleagues for refusing to act on immediate modification. Striking back, one after another, they charged him with a purely political gesture that was designed to strengthen himself with the voters of Connecticut, whom he must face in November.

Bingham insisted that the democrats should take this opportunity to back up their party platform, and presented his proposal as a means of bringing at least $300,000,000 into the treasury to help meet the yawning deficit. But democrats insisted the party platform did not bind them now. It holds, they said, for the coming election. Senator Carter Glass, democrat, Virginia, advanced the theory that the platform only bound the convention delegates.

Senator Norris, republican Nebraska, said he would vote for modification, but not for repeal, though he might yet come to that. He was for modification, he added, as an experiment, to try to prevent returning all the way to the saloon.

But Norris urged the bill be sent back to the committee, which he heads, and voted for Robinson's motion.

"It is quite obvious that the plank of the democratic party is a myth on which the democratic party plans to go on its way in the fall," Bingham said.

He recalled that the democratic presidential candidate, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, is now takin a vacation cruise on a boat christened "Myth II."

"There never was a more satisfactory boat for the democratic candidate to go into wet New England on than the Myth," Bingham told the democrats.

Eleven democrats and 14 republicans voted against the motion to send the beer bill to committee. The voting was close to the same line-up as on the last beer vote which came in the senate before the national convention.

Vote.

Here's the vote:

The winners:

Republicans:

Austin, Borah, Capper, Couzens, Dale, Dickinson, Fess, Frazier, Goldsborough, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Howell, Jones, Keyes, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Robinson, of Indiana; Smoot, Steiwer, Townsend, Vanderburg, Watson and White.—26.

Democrats:

Ashurst, Bailey, Black, Bratton, Byrnes, Caraway, Cohen, Connally, Costigan, Dill, George, Glass, Gore, Harrison, Hayden, Hull, Kendrick, King, Lewis, McGill, McKellar, Robinson, of Arkansas; Sheppard, and Stephens.—24.

Total—50.

The losers:

Republicans:

Barbour, Bingham, Blaine, Davis, Glenn, Hebert, Johnson, Kean, LaFollette, Metcalf, Moses, Patterson, Reed, and Walcott.—14.

Democrats:

Broussard, Bulkley, Coolidge, Copeland, Fletcher, Long, Pittman, Trammell, Tydings, Wagoner, and Walsh, of Massachusetts.—11.

Total—25.

Despite the democratic platform and the recent anti-prohibition sweep manifest in primaries and at the party conventions, there were no material gains for the "wets" beyond accession of the two Florida senators.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, democrat, Illinois, known as a wringing wet, voted to send the bill to committee. He did not explain this vote.

This was the fourth vote this session on the beer issue. A similar amendment by Bingham was defeated 55 to 26 on May 26. On May 18, the senate defeated a four per cent amendment by the Connecticut senator, 60 to 23, and on the same day a 2.75 per cent beer amendment by Senator Millard Tydings, democrat, Maryland, by a vote of 61 to 24.

Fletcher and Trammell voted against beer on each of these three occasions.

DR. KNAPP IS SILENT ON TEXAS TECH OFFER

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 11.—(AP)—Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, said today he would have no further statement to make regarding the reported offer of the presidency of Texas Technological Institute at Lubbock, until after he has conferred with the Austin board of trustees.

Florida Prisoner's Death Forces Convicts' Transfer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 11.—(AP)—Convicts at the state road camp at Bayard, near here, were being transferred to the prison farm at Raiford today after officials said they had become demoralized following the death in a "sweat box" of a 19-year-old New Jersey convict.

Arthur Maillefert, of Westfield, N. J., recently was found dead from strangulation in the box, with a chain fastened around his neck and tied to a rafter, and heavy wooden stocks clamped to his feet.

He was serving a nine-year sentence for robbery in Volusia county and was placed in the sweat box, officials said, when he refused to work.

Captain George Courson and Solomon Higginbotham, a guard at the camp, were indicted for first-degree murder in connection with Maillefert's death, and were released on $5,000 bond each pending trial.

At a habeas corpus hearing for Courson and Higginbotham, numerous prisoners at the camp made sensational charges of cruelty to convicts at the camp, but they were denied by officials.

Following Maillefert's death, authorities said other prisoners at the camp became so demoralized it was deemed advisable to transfer them to the state prison farm at Raiford.

They were engaged in a road building project.

Whether those prisoners would be displaced with free labor or other convicts officials said they had not decided.

ROOSEVELT FIGHTS HEAVY SEAS FIRST OF REST CRUISE was banished from the galley because "he was in the way."

The Myth will weight anchor early tomorrow with Westport Hill, of Newport, R. I., as the destination.

A third boat of the governor's flotilla carried New York's secretary of state, Edward J. Flynn, Frank Walker, assistant treasurer of the democratic national committee; Robert Jackson, secretary of the national committee, and Jesse I. Strauss, New York merchant. Eddie Dowling, the actor, joined them here.

After supper, Mr. Roosevelt and his crew went swimming in the cove waters.

Arriving at Port Jefferson about noon after a motor trip from New York city, Mr. Roosevelt boarded the Myth and sat for an hour or more while cameramen recorded the event on thousands of feet of film and hundreds of plates.

Airplanes, carrying other cameramen, roared overhead as the yawl bobbed away from the dock. The little ship carried Mr. Roosevelt's personal pennant, a white half moon on a blue field, and the red and blue banner of the New York Yacht Club.

The day was perfect for sailing. The green waters of the sound sparkled under a brilliant sun.

NEW JERSEY WOMAN SOLON BACKS ROOSEVELT, GARNER

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—Representative Mary T. Norton, democrat, New Jersey, who strongly seconded Al Smith for president and who might have had 190 votes herself as vice president, returned to congress today a Roosevelt-Garner campaigner.

"The convention made the decision as to the candidate," said Mrs. Norton, "and its will should and must be followed by every loyal democrat. I expect Mr. Roosevelt to make a great appeal."

Mrs. Norton said she not only would be one of the speakers in a Roosevelt indorsement-day celebration in New Jersey, but that she also would organize the women in every New Jersey county in his behalf. She is vice chairman of the state committee.

Of Garner, Mrs. Norton emphatically declared: "I have been in complete accord with him as speaker and know he will measure up on every issue."

Rather wistfully, Mrs. Norton reviewed her renunciation of a promised vice presidential indorsement from the Smith-voting states of New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey.

"I've had hundreds of letters from women asking me why I withdrew," she said. "I wouldn't have done it for anyone else but my own chief, Speaker Garner, because although I realize fully the vote for me would have been only a gesture, I believe it might have proven a forward step for women in politics—just the idea that many votes could be cast for a woman for vice president."

NEW YORKER'S CAMPAIGN TO BE LAUNCHED SUNDAY

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 11.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential campaign will swing into action next Sunday in New Hampshire, where his campaign for the democratic nomination first received the backing of the voters of his party.

The New York governor, now on the beginning of a week's cruise along the New England coast, is due to arrive at Portsmouth shortly after noon next Sunday.

Plans were announced today for a reception upon his arrival and for a meeting at Hampton Beach, at which the democratic nominee is expected to deliver the first speech of his campaign, since his acceptance of the nomination in Chicago on July 2.

CHILD HEADS GROUP TO PROMOTE PEACE THROUGH BUSINESS

NEWPORK, R. I., July 11.—(AP)—Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy, heads a newly-formed organization to promote peace and prosperity through better international trade relations.

A group of prominent New York businessmen, representatives of a Japanese bank and a Japanese trading company and a representative of the South Manchurian railway met yesterday at Child's Newport home.

The meeting was called to consider the wisdom of regular summer conferences on international affairs as seen by business interests, rather than through the eyes of political and collegiate "idealists," and the organization will be known as the "Newport conference."

It was expected that a date would be set for the first official meeting later this summer, and representative business leaders would be invited to attend.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO MRS. GEORGE KEITH

Mrs. George Keith, of near College Park, died Monday night at a private hospital, following a heart attack Monday afternoon in an Atlanta dentist's office.

With her husband, who formerly resided in Atlanta and was a foreman of construction gangs for several large contracting firms, Mrs. Keith had gone to the dentist to have several teeth filled. She suffered the attack while in the dentist's chair, and lapsed into unconsciousness. She was taken to a private hospital and died within a few hours, without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Keith and her husband resided on Route 8, College Park. She had been in poor health for several months, it was said.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Keith is survived by a son by a former marriage, W. E. Barnett, of 519 Kennedy street, who is employed by the city as a mechanic. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Awtry & Lowndes.

TENNESSEAN KILLED BY PLANE PROPELLER

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 11.—(AP)—Robert V. Archie, about 25, formerly of Johnston City, Tenn., was killed here late yesterday by an airplane propeller which he had just spun to start the plane's motor.

Gunman-Desperado Dies of Police Wounds

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 11.—(AP) James Storey, 22-year-old St. Paul (Minn.) youth wanted in Ohio for murder, robberies and kidnapings, died in a hospital here tonight, little more than 12 hours after he was shot down by police officers who arrested him here early today.

A bullet in the abdomen, received when Storey broke away from his captors at the police station, raced through the business district and leaped a bridge railing and with manacled hands tried to swim to freedom, caused his death.

The youth's last request, that his bride of three weeks be brought to see him, was denied. Police said her father, Delbert Hardy, had taken the girl, Margaret, to a Michigan lake resort 70 miles from here.

During the last questioning by police, the young desperado insisted his real name was "O'Keefe" and not Storey.

SUCCESS RECIPE? DO AS ROMANS DO, COUNSELS SHAW

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—The way of success, said George Bernard Shaw tonight, is charted by that venerable sophistry, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."

The Irish dramatist spoke from London in an international broadcast of one of a series of addresses called "Rungs of the Ladder."

He disclosed satirically that "I in my modest way, was a juvenile gangster" and as a youth had boasted he had never shaved, drank or smoked because his father warned him not to follow his example. "If you want your children to be safe and respectable," he counseled, "you must bring them up to do nothing except what everybody does, right or wrong. The moment they depart from that well-trodden, straight and simple path, they are in danger.

"This makes things very easy for parents, for instead of making little saints of their children, all they have to do is to inculcate one single, simple precept—when in Rome, do as the Romans do."

There are no "great men or great women" in the world, he said, any more than there are unicorns or dragons.

MISSING YACHT, OBJECT OF SEARCH, BACK IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—The Ketch Curlew, object of a sea and air search for several days when it failed to arrive at Bermuda on a race from Montauk Point, N. J., arrived today with a report that the boat had experienced both "rough going and easy cruising," but that it was in no danger at any time.

Nat Blum, skipper, said that in the first three days after the start of the race June 29, the boat made 540 miles, but was 100 to 150 miles east of its course. On the fourth day heavy southwest winds prevented the Ketch from making much headway.

About the seventh or eighth day, he said, there were more favorable winds and the boat was headed for Bermuda again. However, the winds were light and when the Ketch failed to make very good headway it was decided, when about 100 miles off Bermuda, to return to New York, as the crew had only two weeks vacation and they wished to get home in time to return to work.

COASTAL HIGHWAY PLANS TO BE LAID

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., July 11.—(AP) Release of homing pigeons early tomorrow morning will informally open the twelfth annual convention of the Atlantic Coastal Highway Association here.

The pigeons will carry messages from the convention to mayors of various cities as far north as Norfolk, Va., along the route of the highway.

Colonel J. C. Steplin, of Jacksonville, will be in charge of the assembly, which will continue through Saturday.

One purpose of delegates will be to discuss plans for furthering a proposition to establish a 50-foot minimum width of the highway from Maine to Miami. Another proposal to be discussed concerns extension of the highway from Miami to Key West.

M. O. Dunning, of Savannah, chairman of the executive committee, announced today that Los Angeles and other Pacific coast cities had asked for information that would assist them in forming a similar group.

Dunning said the political power of the organization on a non-partisan basis was what attracted attention of the Pacific coast cities. He said the western group had invited the Atlantic committee to send three members there by plane late this month to assist in forming an organization that would work in harmony with this one.

BLOUNT TO ATTEND HIGHWAY MEETING

George C. Blount, of the engineering staff of the state highway board, left Atlanta Monday for Hollywood to attend the Coastal Highway meeting. Blount is on the program for an address dealing with the construction and maintenance of the Coastal highway.

MRS. ELLA K. BOGGAN PASSES AT AGE OF 57

Born in Atlanta, Mrs. Boggan had resided here most of her life. She was a member of the First Christian church, and was well known. She was the mother of Mrs. J. Austin Dillon, wife of the well-known funeral director. Besides her daughter, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Pauline Kries Huber, and three granddaughters, Miss Annie Ruth Boggan, Miss Helen Boggan and Jane Austin Dillon, all of whom reside in Atlanta. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CORONER'S JURY UNABLE TO DECIDE

Returns Verdict That Reynolds' Death Was by Unknown Hands.

a former Broadway blues singer, of the unhappiness which apparently prompted Reynolds' threats—threats that made her believe he had been crazy at the time.

2. The story of Walker, of the multi-millionaire's exclaimation: "I'm going to end it all" as he threw Walker his pocketbook at the end of a party early Wednesday, a few minutes before he was mortally wounded.

3. The widow's explanation that Reynolds was melancholy from fear he could not hold her love. Reynolds had suffered a lapse of virility, she related, and urged her to have an affair with another. To this suggestion, she said she responded: "No, no. I told him my love for him was too great to be impaired by any one thing."

4. A strange hospital incident in which attendants said they found the widow and Walker struggling on the floor of a room while Reynolds' wounds were treated in another room. "Oh, my baby, my baby," Libby was quoted as saying, and then, "Don't you know I'm going to have a baby?" Walker, the attendants asserted, suggested that the widow not talk of the Reynolds' tragedy.

Mrs. Reynolds had been brought to the hospital shortly after Walker rushed her husband there and had been assigned a room on the third floor. She was clad in a negligee and was barefooted.

"We heard sounds of commotion," said the nurse, "and rushed to the room. We found Walker and Mrs. Reynolds on the floor, apparently struggling to get up."

"Oh my baby, my baby," she quoted Libby as saying.

"What do you mean?" she said Walker asked.

"Don't you know I'm going to have a baby?" she said Libby replied.

Walker explained this grapple by saying he went to the room to caution Mrs. Reynolds against talking about the tragedy, and while there fainted and fell to the floor. He denied Mrs. Reynolds also fell.

After hearing the witnesses, the jury went in a body to visit the scene of the shooting and then began its deliberations.

The 26-year-old widow lost all of her composure when she reached the point in her testimony of telling of the impotency of young Reynolds.

Libby sobbed almost incoherently that Smith urged her to have an affair with another man because of his inability to make her happy.

"No, no, no," she cried. "I told him my love for him was too great to be aimpaired by any one thing."

On the Monday night preceding the shootintg early last Wednesday Reynolds, she testified, became so worried about her happiness that he said definitely he would take steps to break up the marriage for her sake.

"Oh, such agony. Oh, God," exclaimed Libby, sobbing.

"Buck up," said her father, Albert Holman, of Cincinnati. "I can't bear it for you. I wish I could."

As Libby clutched at her long, white pleated frock she was subjected to a searching examination as to what she had known of Walker, who was both chum and secretary to Reynolds, 20-year-old multimillionaire. She wore sandals and no stockings.

She said she met Walker last summer on Long Island, where she and Smith had residences.

"I saw him then and on a visit here in October, but I never saw him in my life except when Smith brought him around," she testified."

When Walker came to the stand later he asserted that during the midnight preceding the shooting Libby threw her arms around him and said: "Smith doesn't love me."

Walker described her condition as "very tight." Another witness told of extensive drinking during the entertainment at the palatial estate. Walker said he told Reynolds of the incident. He denied Libby kissed him.

Libby's own story, which exhausted her to such an extent that she stumbled from the hearing, retraced her relations with Reynolds from their first meeting.

Her bushy black hair leashed by a narrow white band, the young widow appeared melancholy but composed as the hearing began. Her sobs came as she reached the intimate portions of the narrative.

He "imagined things," such as "that I didn't love him," she related.

"Wild looks" would come in his eyes. And once, she testified, he placed the muzzle of a pistol to her head after, she said, she had told him if he was determined to kill himself to kill her also, because "I did not want to live without him."

Beginning in a low voice she hesitantly told of her first meeting with Reynolds in Baltimore while she was appearing on the stage there in April, 1930. Later Reynolds pursued her to Florida and France.

Explains Marriage.

"Smith begged me to marry him before he started on his trip around the world," she said.

She testified she came to Reynolda as a guest a month prior to November 29, 1931, when they were married in Monroe, Mich. She said they were married in Michigan "because Smith was a minor and you do not have to have your parents' consent in Michigan."

The final marriage importunities came in Pittsburgh, she said, on the Sunday before the ceremony.

After the wedding, according to her testimony, they went to a hotel in Toledo, Ohio. Reynolds left on his trip shortly thereafter, and she continued acting under her contract until last February, and met Smith in Hongkong in April. They returned to America the following month, she said, and the marriage was announced.

While staying at the Ambassador hotel in New York after their return, she admitted, the fact of their marriage was questioned and straightened out.

She said she met Walker last summer at Port Washington some time before the marriage. She said she saw him again during her visit here in October "But I never saw him in my life except when Smith brought him around."

When Reynolds asked her to marry him, she said he told her:

"Libby, I need you. I've never had any love in my life."

"I told him I would give up the theater," she continued. "Of my own accord I begged him to let me give up the theater and go to school with him."

Knew of Early Marriage.

She said she was fully advised at the time of his marital troubles with the former Anne Cannon, Concord, N. C. textile heiress, and of his divorce. She denied he asked her to marry him before the divorce had been granted.

Referring to one occasion when she said young Reynolds had sought to make a will in her favor, but was prevented from doing so because he was not of age, her voice broke.

"I did not want him to make a will," she sobbed.

She declared she would rather it had become necessary for him to get a job, "and get rid of the curse of that money."

Referring to the suicide threats, she said a shooting at Port Washington last summer, which has been the object of investigation since Reynolds' death, occurred when a pistol he was showing her how to use was discharged in the living room of the home where they were staying.

She said on Sunday before the tragedy Reynolds had left her, and gone to a hotel to spend the night, after another suicide threat when she had told him she believed him crazy, and that she thought he should have his head examined.

She burst into tears, and had to be comforted by members of her family.

She said Reynolds had a gun all the time because he had expressed the fear she might be kidnaped and held for ransom.

Reinforcing her evidence that her husband committed suicide, the l sky-voiced singer offered two notes she said he wrote on previous occasions indicating he considered suicide.

One of them dated June, 1927, said, "My girl has turned me down, goodbye forever." The other purported to be a will, undated, in semi-jocular vein.

Her Mind a Blank.

"I swear I cannot remember one thing about last Tuesday. I'd give my life if I could," she said referring to the mental laps which she said engulfed her from 11 p. m., Monday until hours after the shooting, which occurred at 1 a. m., Wednesday.

"I don't remember the party." . . . where a number of young folk were gathered for a birthday celebration . . . she said. "The only picture I have in my mind is Smith standing up with a gun in his hand, hearing my name being called and then that crash of the universe . . . everything falling around me."

She wailed and became incoherent as she cried s mething about "feeling warm blood."

She was helped from the room as her evidence was completed.

James Shepherd, a guest at the Tuesday night party, said Reynolds was perfectly sober when he left shortly before 1 a. m., but that Walker appeared to be somewhat intoxicated.

He said, in answer to a question, that he did not see Walker put his arms around Libby and kiss her at the boathouse on the private lake of the estate.

Among those mentioned as being at the party was Billy Shaw Howell, of Charlotte, who was reported to be in Mount Airy today.

Other Guests.

Charles E. Norfleet, C. G. Hill, Mrs. William Vaught, of Greensboro, and Virginia Dunkles were other attendants at the party.

During the course of the questioning, Higgins asked how many consecutive days and nights Libby saw Reynolds in the days preceding their marriage.

Libby was quizzed about seeing Reynolds in Pittsburgh on the Sunday afternoon before their marriage.

Higgins asked her how long they stayed at the Ambassador hotel in New York.

"About two weeks, I guess," was the reply.

"There was some discussion and you told authorities you were married," the 26-year-old widow was asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

Soothed by Parents.

On occasions the witness broke into tears but only momentarily and her father and mother soothed her. Her father occasionally cautioned her to speak more slowly. One of the attendants at the inquest described her manner of speech as a "human machine gun."

After Libby told of how young Reynolds engaged C. Raymond Kranrer, of Long Island, as tutor, Solicitor Higgins began taking the witness over occurrences beginning a week ago today and leading up to the tragedy.

After reverting to Sunday and telling with great volubility how she tried to reassure her husband when he accused her of shrinking from him and started to the hotel, she explained her reference to his head examination by saying she told him she thought he was going crazy and needed it. "Lots of times there were arguments like that," she said.

Referring to their troubles along this line she broke down completely as she was forced to tell of young Reynolds' impotency.

She said Reynolds became so worried about her happiness on Monday night that he said definitely he would take steps to break up the marriage for her sake.

She leaned forward and spoke very rapidly, directly to the solicitor.

"I don't remember the party," she said. "The only picture I have in my mind is Smith standing up with a gun in his hand, hearing my name being called and then that crash of the universe—everything falling around me."

She said she thought she was in bed and he standing up.

She ran to him and got the "feeling of warm blood." She was almost incoherent as the words fell from her lips in a torrent.

Mrs. Reynolds was excused after two hours of questioning.

James Shepherd and Charles E. Norfleet, members of the birthday party on the night of the shooting, also were called to testify.

Norfleet said he saw Mrs. Reynolds drinking and added that "I think she'd had plenty to drink." He said he left about 9:30.

Shepherd said Reynolds was "perfectly sober" when he, Shepherd, left the home shortly before 1 a. m.

He said Walker appeared to be "somewhat under the influence of liquor."

Asked if he saw Libby put her arms around Walker and kiss him at the boathouse, he replied, "No, sir."

Shepherd said one round of drinks was served at the house and more liquor was drunk at the boathouse.

Heavy Drinking.

C. G. Hill, in whose honor the party was given, testified how Mrs. Vaught and Libby apparently engaged in a drinking contest. They appeared to be matching "glass for glass," he said, and added that he saw each drink three glasses.

Virginia Dunkles, a brown-haired young woman, said she did not see Libby after 9:30 that night, that she appeared perfectly normal and that at no time did she see Libby and Albert Walker together.

Ethel Shore, night supervisor at the hospital where Reynolds died four hours after the shooting, and Ruby Jenkins, a nurse, testified Mrs. Reynolds was also brought to the hospital and placed in a room on the third floor.

Ab Walker entered the room, they said, and a little later a commotion was heard. They both rushed into the room and found Libby and Walker on the floor struggling to get up.

Miss Jenkins said she heard Walker tell Libby to say nothing about the tragedy.

The nurse also said she heard Libby say: "Oh, my baby, my baby."

Walker asked Libby: "What do you mean?" the nurse testified.

The nurse quoted Libby as replying: "Don't you know I'm going to have a baby?"

Ab Walker was called back to the stand at 4 p. m. He said Smith and Libby were in his room at Reynolds.

Smith left asking, "Did you hear that?" presumably referring to something between Libby and Smith.

Said Yes.

The witness said he replied "yes," although he testified he had heard nothing but merely wanted to prevent Smith from telling him.

Smith also asked if Shepherd heard it and was told Shepherd had already gone.

Walker, his hair closely cropped, appeared at ease, but hesitated as if to refresh his memory, before answering any question.

Walker bit his finger nails as Higgins questioned him about his movements from the time he returned to Winston-Salem from Elkin, N. C., several days before the tragedy.

The witness said he came to Reynolda Sunday afternoon, July 3, but he apparently had difficulty in giving a day by day account of his movements for the week or 10 days previous.

Walker was asked several questions about seeing Walter Batchelor at Reynolda. Batchelor is Miss Holman's manager.

She had testified to her manager's visit, which she said was in connection with plans for her return to the stage.

Walker said Batchelor left Monday night by train for New York.

Higgins asked the witness if at any time he saw Smih, Libby and Batchelor together.

"Yes," Walker said, adding he saw them along with Blanche Yurka studying the lines of a play.

"Did you see anything out of the ordinary between Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Sunday? any words between them?"

Walker said "no."

Then he told of going to the Robert E. Lee hotel Sunday night about 9 o'clock with Smith and spending the night.

"Nothing."

"What happened before you left?" Higgins asked. "Nothing," Walker replied.

Walker insisted he heard no words pass between Smith and Libby.

He said he drove to the city at the latter's request after they had mixed and drunk a highball apiece.

Walker said Smith told him he was insane and expected to see a doctor in the morning.

The witness said the remark was made after they had had a drink at home and at the hotel.

Before leaving Walker said Libby seemed to be "angry" about something but he knew of no reason why she should be angry.

Reynolds appeared normal in spite of his remark about going insane, the witness testified.

They kept on drinking and finally went to sleep, the witness said.

Smith was quoted as saying at time, he thought he was doing things and Mrs. Reynolds would tell him he had not.

They drank half of a quart between them.

Walker said the two returned to Reynolda by 9 a. m. Monday. Higgins asked about the relations that day between Smith and Libby.

They were very friendly, Walker said.

Walker said Reynolds hired him Sunday to do "odd jobs."

He was called on to give a full account of what happened Tuesday.

Arms Around Him.

At the party, Walker said Libby threw her arms around him and said: "Smith doesn't love me."

He described her condition as "very tight."

Walker said he told Smith of the incident.

He denied Libby kissed him.

Walker said Libby came into the house about 11 p. m., and retired.

In the meantime he quoted Smith as saying she probably is roaming around the woods.

He said Smith and Libby were together before she went to bed but he heard no conversation.

About an hour later, he said, Smith started up the steps, was met by Libby and the two went into Walker's room where they remained possibly 15 minutes.

Mrs. Reynolds was said by the witness to have left the room hurriedly followed by Smith, who went with her but came back to the reception room with Walker in a few minutes.

Smith asked: "Did you hear that?" Walker related.

The witness said he's heard nothing but replied "yes," to forestall the story.

Smith said he was going out and not going to return, Walker said.

A short time previously Smith told him a planned around the world trip was off because "he was going to end it all" and pitched his pocketbook to Walker.

Smith "Peeved."

Walker admitted he knew Smith had been "peeved with Mrs. Reynolds all night."

He swore he felt at the time Smith's suicide threat was more or less in earnest.

Telling him to wait Walker said, Smith went upstairs. In a few moments he heard the pistol shot. Then he heard Miss Yurka call him.

As he ran up the steps he heard a scream from the direction of Libby's room.

He said Libby came out of the room and dropped on a balcony bench. Walker ran to the porch and saw Smith on the bed.

The witness couldn't remember whether there was a light on, but insisted he could see clearly.

Coming out of the room, Libby said, "Smith's shot himself." Walker continued.

Walker said he ran and phoned for an ambulance and then returned to the room to find Libby with her arms around Smith.

He told of taking the youth to a hospital. Walker admitted asking the nurses to leave Libby's room and telling her "You shouldn't be saying that."

He said Libby was telling everybody about Smith putting the gun to his head at various times.

He Fainted.

He said he sat on the foot of the bed, fainted and fell to the floor, but denied Libby fell to the floor also.

Walker testified he did not see the gun after Smith was shot.

Higgins asked how he explained Mrs. Reynolds' shoes and sweater in Walker's room.

Walker said he did not know why she left the articles there when she and Smith were in his room.

Walker admitted saying "Whatever happens there's some secret about this matter that I'm going to take to my grave."

He denied he knew any secret or had any knowledge that he had concealed. Walker was excused at 5.50.

Levin S. McGinnis, municipal airport manager said he attended the party, but left about 11 o'clock. He saw two people, Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Vaught drinking corn whisky chased with near beer.

Smith told him as he left to have lights on his new plane as he planned to fly it Wednesday night.

Robert Critz said after the tragedy Walker told him he didn't like to tell him what happened, and that there was something he would take to the grave. The only thing Walker told him was that Smith told him he was going to kill himself, Critz said.

Witnesses Contradicted.

W. E. Fulcher, nightwatchman, said about 12:30 Wednesday morning Mrs. Reynolds entered the yard, contradicting other witnesses who said it was about 11 o'clock when she came in.

Fulcher said Walker came up behind Mrs. Reynolds and joined her, while Smith called out from the second story, asking what the noise was.

Within 10 minutes he heard a shot, then heard the car drive off. He did not investigate the shot.

C. Raymond Kranrer, Flushing, L. I., tutor of Smith, was called.

Kranrer said at no time did he see anything unusual in the relations between Smith and Libby.

Stewart Warenken, manager of Reynolda, said Walker returned to the house after the tragedy and obtained Smith's pocketbook from the sofa where it had been placed after the tragedy.

A member of the jury inquired about fingerprints on the bathroom door.

Officers replied fingerprints did not compare with any taken from those known to be in the house.

Taking of testimony was completed at 6:20.

Reynolds Case Witnesses

At the left is Ab Walker, 19-year-old intimate friend of Smith Reynolds, who was in the palatial Reynolds home at Winston-Salem, N. C., the night the young tobacco heir was slain by a pistol bullet. At the right is Blanche Yurka, New York actress and companion of Libby Holman Reynolds, the widow and former torch singer. Both Walker and Miss Yurka are being detained as material witnesses while authorities are attempting to determine just how the 20-year-old heir came to his death after a drinking party.

BULLET HOLE DISCOVERED IN LIBBY HOLMAN'S HOUSE

PORT WASHINGTON, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—Mrs Daniel A. Murdock said today she found a bullet hole in a dining room table in the Long Island house which she rented to Libby Holman, widow of Smith Reynolds, last summer.

"The course of the bullet was definitely shown across the table top," she said. "I asked my agent to suggest to Miss Holman that she pay for repairs. She readily agreed."

Mrs. Murdock said she had not seen Miss Holman since the discovery of the bullet hole and had never spoken to her about it. Miss Holman did not explain to the agent how the bullet got there, she said.

Miss Holman rented the house in the Spanish bungalow colony near here for the summer. Smith Reynolds occupied a cottage near the actress and near an airport where he kept his plane.

"Everyone seemed to like Miss Holman. She was a respectable and charming tenant," Mrs. Murdock said. "Mr. Reynolds was sometimes considered a bit erratic. Once he drove his car right into the water near where he kept his yacht."

Sheppard Defends Claim To Amendment Framing

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, defended in the senate today his right to be called the author of the eighteenth amendment.

After reading a newspaper article saying "it is generally known that Wayne B. Wheeler wrote and handed the eighteenth amendment to Sheppard to sign on the dotted line," Sheppard said:

"That is entirely untrue. I wrote and introduced the resolution that became the eighteenth amendment. In doing it, I conferred with others in and out of congress."

NEGRO IS ARRESTED, 'RED' PAPERS SEIZED

Angelo Herndon, negro, of 774 Hubbard street, was being held on suspicion Monday night at police headquarters, following his arrest at the request of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin according to police reports. The negro was arrested as he went to the postoffice to call for his mail.

Detectives John Chester and Frank Watson, who made the arrest, said they found radical newspapers and communistic literature in Herndon's room. Circulars flaying the county commissioners and urging negroes and whites to organize in order to get relief from the city and county governments also were found, it was said.

JUSTICE SCHOEPFER'S RIGHT TO OFFICE WAS QUESTIONED

MONROE, Mich., July 11.—(AP)—Coincident with the disclosure that this city was the scene of the marriage of young Smith Reynolds and Libby Holman, it was recalled today that long before Justice Fred M. Schoepfer performed the ceremony last November 29, the city commission had questioned his right to hold office.

The state legislature in 1928 adopted what was known as the municipal courts act, providing for the establishment of courts of higher ranking than justice of the peace in certain cities. Schoepfer refused to surrender his office and went on performing its functions.

The city commission ordered quo warranto proceedings instituted to oust Schoepfer, but his death December 26, last, intervened before definite action was taken.

The witnesses, Mrs. Schoepfer and Mrs. Helen Chism, a neighbor, could recall Reynolds and his bride only as a "nice young couple" who came to the house one Sunday in an automobile, spoke the words required of them and left.

"I've seen pictures of the girl," said Mrs. Chism, "but until now I never thought there was any resemblance. They were so quiet and the ceremony was so brief that I just forgot all about it."

It was the same with Mrs. Schoepfer. She was a witness to many of the 1,500 marriage ceremonies at which her husband officiated and one more made little impression on her.

Glass Currency Bill Is Adopted by Senate

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—The Glass billion-dollar currency expansion bill was adopted by the senate today as an amendment to the pending home loan discount measure.

The vote was 53 to 18.

The action came only a few minutes after the senate without a record vote had rejected the Goldsborough dollar stabilization measure, which was proposed by Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, as an amendment to the pending home loan bank bill.

Only four democrats and 14 republicans voted against the Glass bill which was offered as an amendment to the home loan bank bill by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho.

The measure would give the circulating privilege to about $995,000,000 of United States bonds held by national banks, allowing them to issue money against the bonds.

Senators voting against the bill were: Republicans, Barbour, Bingham, Blaine, Fess, Glenn, Goldsborough, Hale, Hastings, Hebert, Kean, Keyes, Metcalf, Meses and Reed. Democrats, Copeland, Dill, Tydings and Wagner.

CHARGE AGAINST MILL DROPPED BY U. S. BOARD

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—A complaint charging the Textile Bag Manufacturers' Association of Detroit with suppressing competition in the sale of cotton, flour, meal and feed bags was dismissed today by the federal trade commission.

The commission said the dismissal was ordered because the association had abandoned the practices upon which an investigation was initiated.

The order affects the following member companies, among others: Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills, Atlanta; Millheiser Bag Company, of Richmond, Va.; Morgan and Hamilton Company, of Nashville; Crystal Springs Bleachery Company, of Chickamauga, Ga.; Werthan Bag Company, Nashville; Mente and Company, Inc., New Orleans, and the Hardin Bag Company, of New Orleans.

ADES LEAVES TAMPA AFTER BEING RELEASED

TAMPA, Fla., July 11.—(AP)—Bernard Ades, Baltimore lawyer who was arrested here recently and held while police investigated his activities in behalf of alleged communists, has left the city after being released on a writ of habeas corpus.

Several months ago Ades came here to represent a man described by police as a radical agitator who, they said, had been causing trouble among cigar workers.

Curb Service Offered For Vote Registration

MANHATTAN, Kas., July 11.—(AP)—Curb service enters politics. For the benefit of the motoring populace, Charles Lantz, Manhattan city clerk, plans to have his pencils, pads and records on the curb in front of the city hall from 7 until 10 o'clock each night for 10 days preceding closing of the registration books for the August primary election.

Rockefellers Honored.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 11.—(AP)—The Rockefeller Family Association, Inc., has received permission to erect a marker on the battlefield of Saratoga in honor of eight members of the family who fought in the battle as continental soldiers. The association plans to dedicate a boulder bearing a bronze plate on October 15.

"SERVING THE SOUTH FOR 66 YEARS"

STATE AMATEURS QUALIFY HERE THIS MORNING

Savannah Is Real Aristocrat of All Golfing Cities in States

Savannah, which is ably represented in the state golf tournament which gets started in its qualifying rounds over the beautiful Capital City Club course this morning, is the real aristocrat of all the golfing cities in these United States.

It was there that we have the first record of golf on the North American continent. There is an invitation in the archives of the Savannah Country Club dated December 13, 1811, which invites the recipient to a dance at "the golf club of this city."

This happens to be about 77 years before golf was heard of at Yonkers, N. Y. An American named John Reid had a friend bring back 12 sets of clubs from England and he and other friends constructed a six-hole course at Yonkers.

The Savannah invitation was to a dance at the golf club. But other notices in the papers of the city of that era, yellow and brittle with age, substantiate the claim that Savannah was the birthplace of golf on the North American continent.

There are some fine old Georgia names on the 1811 invitation. They read as familiarly as if they were appended to some modern invitation. As managers of the German there were Robert Mackay, George Woodruff, John Craig, James Dickson and George Hogarth.

From the start at Savannah in 1811 when perhaps 25 people played golf, the game has grown until it now boasts more than 10,000,000 slaves, addicts and thralls, all of them helplessly involved with the intricacies of either breaking 100 or, having done that, breaking a 75.

The state tournament finds six players entered from Savannah, probably as many as the game itself had in this country in the early years of the Savannah settlement.

A BIRTHDAY DUEL.

Charles Black Jr., former state and city champion and twice qualified for the national amateur, is supplying the tournament with its best story to date.

Black and "Shirt" Boston, former handball champion and now enslaved by golf, have been carrying on a duel with birthday gifts as weapons.

"Boston sent me a large tin cup," said Black. "On one side was my record for last year. It began by 'Failed to Qualify in Southern.' It then had 'Beaten by 16-Year-Old High School Student.' That was Charley Yates. And finally it said, 'Although a champion cannot beat his next door neighbor.' Which is quite true," grinned Black, "because my next door neighbor happens to be Bobby Jones."

On the reverse side of the cup were quotations from sportswriters which were not so hot as far as recommendations were concerned.

Black sent Boston a bathing suit of the gay nineties vintage, long sleeves and trunks which come far down on the shins.

Bob Martin, one of the tournament committee, is seeking to have Black place his cup on exhibition at the starter's tent but Black is being a bit modest so far. He will if Boston will pose, wearing the swimming suit, for one hour each day at the starter's tent.

ANOTHER R. T. JONES.

There is an R. Tyre Jones on the board at the club but it is simply a relative of Bobby Jones and not Bobby himself.

There are a couple of the Jones family here from Canton. Both are quite in love with golf and both play well. R. T. Jones Jr. can outdrive Bobby Jones any time he steps to the tee. His tee shots are tremendous, booming things right down the middle. The younger brother is Ben Jones, called "Restless" because he is perpetually wanting to be about playing golf.

Canton has sent a foursome to the tournament, Rosser Little and John Tate coming along with the Jones' to see what Canton can do about the state golfing honors.

SCOTTIE BEVERLY—WEEMS BASKIN.

Scottie Beverly, the Thomasville sportsman, was playing about Monday wearing a fishing hat which had some of the fishermen wanting to make away with the hat and go down to the club's lake and try for bass.

Beverly and Weems Baskin, the latter being former hurdle star at Auburn and now track coach at Georgia, have the most picturesque set of clubs in the tournament. Beverly has his woods painted in bright hues. Baskin caries the greatest assortment of irons to be seen on any golf course.

"I use an iron from the tee and I usually break about three a round," said Baskin, " so I carry about 17 irons."

Baskin's caddy is going to lose some weight even if the big fellow doesn't get far.

COLLEGE GOLFERS FEATURE.

John Owens, the splendid young golfer who captained the University of Pennsylvania golf team last season, is entered in the tournament, having recently moved to Atlanta.

Owens is one of the best young college golfers in the east and should be one of the long shots in the state tournament. He said, of Pennsylvania's athletics, that Harvey Harmon, former coach at Sewanee, and now head football coach at Pennsylvania, that the ex-Southern conference coach was quite popular with students and players. Harmon had a better-than-average season last fall and expects to be even better next fall.

Owens is just one of the many college golf players who are entered in the state tournament. Dean Smith, of Savannah, is a member of the Williams golf team and met Owens in an eastern match during the spring. Elliott Haas is another member of the Williams team.

Billy McWilliams and Charley Warner, both members of the University of Georgia golf team, are entered. Georgia Tech supplies Charley Yates, state and city champion; John and Frank Ridley, George Harris and Berrien Moore.

"It looks very much like a young man's tournament," said Bob Martin, "but I expect there are enough adults in here to give them all the trouble they want."

SOUNDS LIKE AL.

"What about the report you will agree to split the season if your team ties with Memphis in this series?" Joe Engel, owner of the Chattanooga club, was asked Monday afternoon via long distance.

"Just a lot of baloney," said Mr. Engel.

Hasty, Eisemann To Arrive Today

Bob Hasty, pitcher, and Bill Eisemann, catcher, procured from the Birmingham Barons in an outright purchase, are scheduled to arrive in Atlanta today.

Eisemann very likely will catch here Thursday against Chattanooga and Hasty may pitch the game. Both players have been ordered to report as soon as possible and Business Manager Chick Roos expects them today.

East Lake Qualifying To Start on Sunday

Qualifying rounds in the annual handicap championship tournament of East Lake will start Sunday and continue for two weeks, it was announced yesterday.

Match play will then start and there will be one round a week. Players may qualify between now and Sunday, but qualifying officially starts Sunday.

JOHNNY DOBBS IS SEEKING JOB FOR NEXT YEAR

Joe Engel Declares He Will Not Agree to Split Season.

By Jimmy Jones.

Johnny Dobbs expresses himself as hoping that he will be back in baseball next spring, but there is no earthly chance of his return to the Atlanta Crackers in a managerial capacity.

Dobbs himself made that clear yesterday when he stated that he hoped to have a new connection to announce to the "newspaper boys" soon, but that "it may pan out and it may not." It is believed that the veteran manager referred to the job at New Orleans in the event the Southern Association season was divided, but the very latest report along that line is that if anyone relieves Jakey Atz as the Pel pilot, it will be Larry Gilbert who did such a great job there for a number of years.

NO KICK.

"I have no kick to make against the Atlanta club regarding salary as I have received my money on the regular pay days of the team," Dobbs stated. He also added that his salary had been paid up to date and while he had not been to Atlanta to collect his latest check, he had been informed by Atlanta officials that his money was ready for him.

Dobbs conferred with Judge K. M. Landis at length Sunday, but it was reliably ascertained that the conversation had nothing to do with any difficulties of his own. Dobbs revealed when questioned on the matter that he had talked with Landis regarding his possible reutrn to the game and what, if any, steps would be necessary in the event that he would desire to be released from his Atlanta contract.

"Landis assured me he thought I would have no trouble along this line, and in fact if I should establish a new connection, he did not believe that the Atlanta club would stand in my way," Dobbs declared. Dobbs further stated that Bobby Jones, whom he believed implicitly had told him repeatedly that the Atlanta club would not hamper him if he should locate something new.

SEEKS JOB.

"My main trouble now is getting a job and frankly I have nothing in view in the way of employment." Dobbs added. He hopes to return to baseball next spring. At present he is living in retirement on his farm at Ringgold.

Atlanta officials stated yesterday that the Dobbs issue stood with them exactly where it has stood for the last several months, and that Red Barron would remain the club's manager for the balance of the season, split or not.

In a telephone conversation with The Constitution last night from Chattanooga, Joe Engel declared that the matter of splitting the season was no nearer solution that it had been and that he still stuck to his contention that he would be foolish to split the season at all, whether behind or ahead of Memphis, since he believed his Lookouts stood a good chance of breezing down the stretch to the flag.

"Even if we should split with Chattanooga ahead, we would still have a play-off at the end of the season and that is decidedly more of a risk than simply playing through and winning if you can," Engel said.

The Lookout chieftain maintained that he had rather be a few games behind Memphis at the time than a few games ahead, as his club was improving all the time and that he counted on a strong finish.

Engel Declares He'll Not Split Season.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 11.—(AP)—Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga baseball club, stated before the Chattanooga-Memphis game here today that he would not agree to a split season in the Southern association under any circumstances.

The prexy's statement was in denial of reports from Atlanta that he would agree to the divided season if his club should capture the present series with the Chicks.

"Get this straight," he said, "once and for all I say I have no idea of splitting the season. It wouldn't be fair to the Chattanooga fans now. We are up in the race now and the fans would resent it should I agree to the split."

At an informal session here yesterday between the Southern association president, John D. Martin; Tom Watkins, Memphis owner, and Billy West, head of the Birmingham club, the split season was discussed. At the meeting, Engel repeated his refusal to agree to the chance in schedule.

No Split Season, Martin States.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 11.—(AP) There will be no split season in the Southern Association this season, President John D. Martin announced here today.

No official vote was taken on the proposal, but Martin produced a telegram from Joe Engle, president of the Chattanooga club, in which the Chattanooga prexy made it emphatic he would not vote for a split season.

"I suppose this ends all talk of splitting the 1932 season," Martin added, "as it requires a unanimous vote."

Martin watched the Smokies trounce the Crackers this afternoon and just before the start of the game presented R. G. Allen, Knoxville owner, with a perpetual gold pass to all league games. Allen has been active in the league for 18 years.

Maxie Rosenbloom To Defend Title

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized in this state as world's light-heavyweight champion, defends his title against Lou Scozza, of Buffalo, in a 15-round bout in Buffalo Wednesday night, the only bout of more than ordinary interest on the national fistic card this week.

Rosenbloom originally was to have met George Nichols, also of Buffalo, who holds the National Boxing Association's light-heavyweight championship. Scozza, however, whipped Nichols in a non-title bout and was given the "shot" at Rosenbloom.

The light weight match between Kid Chocolate and Jack (Kid) Berg will be held in Madison Square Garden bowl next Monday night. This bout was to have been held tonight but was postponed when Berg came down with a heavy cold.

WIN SHOOT.

Five Invaders Seeking State Golf Championship

CRACKERS LOSE ANOTHER, 15-5

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 11.—What started out with all the earmarks of a good ball game shifted into a one-sided track meet this afternoon as the Smokies made it three in a row from the Crackers, 15 to 5. The victory gave Knoxville a record of nine wins out of 10 games played with the Atlanta club here this season.

Bunny Hearn hurled well in the pinches until the fifth, when Knoxville broke a 4-4 tie to score eight runs and move so far in front they were never threatened. Casey took over the hurling duties in the fifth, and got by fairly well for the remainder of the game.

The Crackers had only one good inning at the plate, the fourth, when they scored four runs to take a 4-to-1 lead. Hearn, however, went hay-wire in the next inning and with the Smokies with the aid of three free trips to first, plus a couple of hits, tied the count. Another run in the fifth, when Barron singled, took second on Klugman's sacrifice, and scored on Chapman's single to center, put the Crackers ahead once more.

But the Smokies' wild spurt in their half of the same inning ruined a perfectly good ball game. Jo Jo Klugman protested so vigorously against a decision by Umpire Higgins in that inning that he was excused from all further labor.

Horne laid down a bunt down the third-base line which Higgins called foul. Horne, however, dug in and by the time he reached first the ball had rolled fair. Klugman, and it must be admitted his arguments had its points, maintained that Higgins should not have called the ball one way or the other until the play was over.

The two clubs will end their series here Tuesday. Carrithers is slated to work for the Crackers with Chambers or Seagraves on the mound for Knoxville.

New Fighters Enter Amateur Tourney

New faces will be seen at Jay Thomas' amateur fight show at Lakewood park Friday night. Among the latest entries are T. J. Maddox, Howard Bennett and Floyd Boggs.

Around 65 fighters are competing in Thomas' tournament. Red Barrett has hurled a challenge at Chief Redfern for Friday night and it will be a toss-up as to who will win this one. "Frog Eye" Maddox, from the Journal, has challenged Baby Johnston.

Bob Smith Stars As Cub Pitcher; Wins Five in Row

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—Burleigh Grimes and Charlie Root have been demoted to bullpen duty, and four other Cub pitchers have established themselves as starters—and as long as they operate as they have during the past five days, they will keep right on starting.

The four, Lonnie Warneke, Pat Malone, Bob Smith and Guy Bush, have come up with five straight victories and none has required relief.

The sensational youngster from Mt. Ida, Ark., Warneke, heads the list. On July 6 he defeated Philadelphia, 6 to 1, and gave eight hits. Malone came up with a 7 to 0 shutout the next day, allowing five hits. Then Smith, although nudged for 11 hits, defeated the Phillies, 6 to 4. Bush shot down the Boston Braves, 5 to 2, Saturday, giving six hits, and Warneke came right back again yesterday, winning by 4 to 0, and giving up six hits.

Jakie May used to do all the warming up, and had plenty of relief work to do, particularly on the road. Now Grimes is the head warmup man, and hasn't been in a game since he got the job.

EATON DIRECTS COURSE HERE

The Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross will conduct an examiners' training course beginning Thursday at 7 p. m. at the Atlanta Athletic Club under the direction of Ramone S. Eaton, field representative of the American Red Cross and expert in life saving and first aid methods.

All senior life savers who are desirous of teaching life saving and swimming are invited to take this course, which is begin given free to those qualified. The classes will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, beginning each evening at 7.

The national death rate by drownings has been for some years stationary as to numbers, although it shows a steady decline when considered in relation to the constantly increasing number of swimmers. This reduction in percentage is due to the spread of water safety methods in which the American Red Cross has taken the leadership. Its life-saving service now develops more than 60,000 new certified life savers annually.

The life guards at the local pools are instructed and examined by Red Cross inspectors. Many Atlantans have received instruction in Red Cross methods of swimming and life saving which has reduced the death rate of Atlantans on their vacations.

The course includes training in diving to bring up bodies, methods of approaching struggling swimmers, breaking their holds and towing them to the beach, and resuscitating the apparently drowned by the prone pressure system of artificial breathing. It also teaches how to deal with and prevent boating upsets and other water accidents and how to safeguard swimming places.

Those desiring to register for the courses are asked to call the Red Cross office, Walnut 3201.

McAdams, Mauldin Ready for Match

Participants on the all-star wrestling and boxing card promoted by F. P. Owens, to be staged in the Buckhead gymnasium Friday night, are doing some intensive training for their coming battles and are expected to be in tiptop condition.

Headlining the wrestling card is Jack McAdams, veteran in the wrestling field, who meets George Mauldin, Atlanta, another progressive youngster.

Bob Anderson, Buckhead favorite, is one of the roughest of the young wrestlers, and he meets John Dameron, Atlanta.

Plenty of fistic action can be expected when Johnny K. O. Vickers meets K. O. Karr, of Birmingham, a clever boxer, in the 10-round main go of the boxing card.

Nurmi Comes Up With Bad Limp

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—Limping painfully, but offering no more conversation than usual, Paavo Nurmi led the Finnish Olympic team on toward Los Angeles without telling Chicago what caused the limp.

The phantom Finn boarded the train in New York Saturday showing no sign of a limp. When the team stopped off at Chicago yesterday, his left ankle was badly swollen.

His typically Nurmi explanation was:

"Yesterday. On train. Nothing."

ATLANTA BOYS IN ALBANY MEET

ALBANY, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—Richard Chaplin, of Columbus, who for two years has won the south Georgia tennis tournament here, will find stiffer competition in the sixth annual event starting tomorrow.

However, the red-haired minister, who bats the ball with a dazzling left hand stroke, has informed the tournament committee he is in top shape after weeks of practice.

Winship Nunnally, of Atlanta, one of the highest-ranking boy players in the south, and Remus Harris, of Atlanta, runner-up in the boys' state championship at Savannah, are among recent entrants.

Miss Evangeline McClennan, of Atlanta, state singles champion, heads a field of women stars entered.

Play starts tomorrow and continues through Saturday.

Lagula, Thomas Fight to Draw

Kid Lagula and Gene Thomas fought to a fast draw in the feature bout of Roby's card last night.

In the semi-windup Kid Coleman defeated Bob Hunter by decision in six rounds. Sailor Born won by a knockout over Jack Newsome in another six-rounder, while the Malone-Amos bout was called no contest.

The fights were good throughout and a fine crowd attended the card.

CHARLIE YATES CARDS SECOND 71 ON EVE OF PLAY

Defending Champion Shows Better Form; 140 Expected To Enter.

By Roy White.

Georgia's amateur golfers will qualify today on the beautiful Capital City Country Club course for play in the 15th annual state tournament with more than 140 players slated to seek places in the select circle of 32 which makes up the championship division.

The entry list represents the cream of the state's "Simon-pures" and golfers from every section of Georgia will be here during the remainder of the week, playing for the highest golf honor in the state.

18 HOLES QUALIFYING.

Qualifying rounds will be over 18 holes and players will be divided into four divisions of 32 each, with first-round matches slated for Wednesday. The winning and losing 16 players in each of the divisions will form flights and the defeated eight players in the championship flight will form a consolation flight.

Charlie Yates, the young defending champion, is the only player exempt from qualifying. He will be placed at the top of the championship bracket, as the No. 1 player in the drawings.

There were 125 entries received through late Monday afternoon and starting times for those have already been posted. Belated entries will be received at the starting tee today until 3:30 o'clock, after which time no other players will be permitted to qualify.

MUST BE READY.

Every player entered is requested to be ready to tee off at his given time and others who enter today are requested to communicate with Paul Duke at the first tee and get a starting time. The times from 8:25 to 12 o'clock and from 12:55 on have been filled, but there are others available before and after those times.

Yates, East Lake golfer, who rose to the heights in Georgia's golfing circles last year by winning the state and Atlanta crowns, again led practice Monday for the second successive day with a 71 at Capital City. He was hitting his tee shots better than at any time during the past few weeks, but was not satisfied with his iron game.

Dean and Kayton Smith, the Savannah brothers, who were runners-up in 1931 and 1929, respectively; John Owens, Atlanta, captain of the University of Pennsylvania golf team; Billy McWilliams, Georgia medalist last year; Dan Sage Jr., who recently set a new Ansley Park course record; Scott Hudson Jr., winner of the Highlands invitation tourney; Charlie Dannals Jr., winner of the Tate Estates invitation tourney; Scottie Beverly, the Thomasville star, and many others are ready to give Yates a battle for his title.

The Savannah delegation appears to be the strongest from out-of-town. Kayton and Dean Smith, Duncan Strachan, Lane Fullenwider, runner-up to Tommy Barnes in the Georgia High school medal play; Dr. Billy Weichselbaum Jr. and Harvey Ferrell, one of Savannah's best municipal players, represent the east coast city.

Colonel Lowry Arnold, president of the Georgia State Golf Association; Paul Duke, Keith Conway, Robert H. Martin, Wimberly Peters and Johnny Westmoreland, together with Howard Beckett and Willie Livingstone, the club professionals, will be in charge of the tournament.

OFFICIALS MEET.

Arnold announced Monday afternoon that the annual meeting of the board of directors will be held at 7 o'clock Thursday night at the club. The meeting will be followed by a dinner-dance in compliment to the many visiting golfers.

GRANT AND SUTTER WILL PLAY HERE SUNDAY

DRIVING CLUB COURTS SCENE OF 2 MATCHES

Leading Southern Tennis Stars Will Appear in Singles, Doubles.

By Ralph McGill.

Bryan Grant and Cliff Sutter are going to meet again—this time in Atlanta. Time—Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and the place, the Piedmont Driving Club courts.

The two rivals, who have already met three times this season in important tournaments, will appear in the singles and doubles. In doubles they will be separated, Billy Reese, city champion, pairing with Sutter to meet Grant and Malon Courts.

The exhibition will be open to the public and stands will be erected to accommodate a large crowd which the match will justify. The Junior League of Atlanta is sponsoring the match. The Junior League is annually responsible for some splendid sport attractions in Atlanta. Last year they had Gene Sarazen, Johnny Golden, Horton Smith and Bobby Jones in an exhibition.

The entire proceeds from the Sunday match will go to the Junior League ward in the Henrietta Egleston Memorial hospital.

No finer tennis match could have been obtained. Grant and Sutter, in their three meetings, have had national attention focused on them.

Twice has Grant, Atlanta's national tennis star, been turned back in the finals of important tournaments by Sutter. In the finals of the southern and the national intercollegiate, Sutter won from Grant. In the semifinals of the national clay courts championship, Grant won from Sutter. He hopes to even things up here.

The singles match is important and the doubles, with two of the finest young stars in the south paired with Sutter and Grant, appear equally as attractive. All in all, they are the finest tennis matches that could be arranged with the exception of the Davis cup matches.

Sutter, a New Orleans product, has been one of the better-known young stars for the past three years. He has been a familiar figure in national matches and his play in the national inter-collegiates this year was some of the best tennis of the season.

Grant won the 1930 national clay courts title. Last season saw him as number one on the North Carolina University team and undefeated in a series of matches which included those with eastern teams. His consistent appearance in the semi-finals and finals of important tournaments this year assures him of a good rating.

He and Sutter, by their hard-fought matches, have established themselves as one of the greatest "matches" of the year.

The Junior League has made a most attractive price for the matches, tickets being seventy-five cents. Tickets will be on sale Wednesday at the Atlanta Athletic Club, at Spaldings, at Milo's Tennis Shop, at the East Lake Club, the Standard Club and the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mrs. Alison Thornwell is president of the Atlanta Junior League and Mrs. John Grant Jr. is Junior League chairman of the tennis match. Mrs. Reginald Fleet is in charge of publicity.

Sunday Baseball Election Today

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 11.—(AP)—Opposing forces in the Sunday baseball fight took the stump today in a final drive for support in tomorrow's special election on the question.

Widespread interest has been aroused in the proposal to legalize the Sunday pastime in Birmingham with a group of prominent sportsmen supporting the measure while the opposition has been lead by preachers carrying the fight to their pulpits.

The special election was called after a petition bearing the 5,000 signatures required by law was presented the city commission requesting the action. The ministers charge legalization of the sport would be the entering wedge for a "wide open Sunday" in Birmingham.

RACES POSTPONED.

SAVANNAH, July 11.—(AP)—The Savannah sailing yacht races have been postponed until July 29 and 30. They originally were scheduled for early this month. The dates are satisfactory to yachtsmen of Charleston, Beaufort and Jacksonville who will participate.

Any Ice Today, Lady? Call Tarzan Lackey

Tech Athlete Wrestles With Big Blocks To Keep in Condition for Football.

By Jimmy Jones.

Any ice today? Just telephone Mr. Tarzan Lackey, ma'am, and he'll have it there in a jiffy. It might not all be in one piece, for Tarzan hasn't quite mastered the fine art of juggling the big blocks around with the hooks.

At any rate, it's a cool summer pastime, this business of working for an ice company. And Lackey, the young man whom Coach Alexander shifted from end to a guard for the post-season game with California and found that he clicked there, is keeping himself in shape for a big season next fall.

Tarzan, or J. D., as his initials read on the Tech registration book, is probably working harder than any Jacket athlete during the summer. He wants to get in shape so that he will be able to start from taw in September. Tarzan Lackey would like to be the kind of guard that Raleigh Drennon was. He likes the position better than end, where his lack of heighth handicapped him a little. Coach Alex decided he was an ideal guard type, and next season will find him a regular there, no doubt.

During the spring, Tarzan had some trouble with his tonsils, enough to keep him out of the early rounds of Mike Chambers' boxing tournament. This was quite a setback to Tarzan, for he is naturally pugilistically inclined.

"I'll be ready for football, though, provided I lift enough of this stuff," says the new ice man. Tarzan should prove a very popular ice man, for he is a most masculine type.

News of other Tech footballers and their summer vacations trickles in at the Flats now and then. Tom Cain, well-known impersonator of Chaney, is reported to be somewhere in Texas working on a ranch and wearing an honest-to-goodness sombrero. Jap Hart and Pat Barron are spending the vacation in Atlanta.

Jack Phillips, counted on as one of the Jackets' best passers and kickers, has recuperated from a collarbone injury that necessitated an operation and after a few weeks in an Atlanta hospital is as good as new. He thinks he can meet those runners coming through the line with a firm shoulder. He is gone to his home in North Carolina to get a long rest, allowing the injury plenty of time to heal. Coach Alex values Phillips as a defensive back.

Pug Boyd, Hoot Gibson, Mutt Morris and other sophomores-to-be are keeping themselves in shape for the season of 1932, which all Tech men are hoping will be a better one for all concerned.

John Pool, who likely will understudy Monk Neblett at center, is playing baseball for an independent nine in Macon.

Jerry Goldsmith, the gritty end, who played two games with a cracked jawbone, got in a good season on Ed Hamm's track team and says he feels like a million. He is attending summer school.

Most of Coach Alex's regulars passed exams with flying colors and should all be on hand when the bell rings. Two boys, Tom Peeler, back, and Jimmy Branch, guard, won't be eligible for the season, but hope to make up their work in time for the '33 schedule.

That's a fine crop of youngsters that the Gold and White will have for the nucleus of the 1932 team and if they are the fighters that Alex's dauntless team of bantams were last fall, they may get a running start in the opening game with Clemson and come up with the best record a Tech team has had since 1928.

Barons Purchase Pitcher Sherid

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 11.—(AP)—The second division Birmingham baseball team, determined to elevate its position in the current pennant race, today purchased Roy Richard Sherid, right-hand pitcher, from Newark in the club's fourth player deal in three days.

ATHLETICS BOW IN DOUBLE BILL TO TRIBE, 9-8, 12-7

Averill Hits 3 Home Runs To Aid in Double Victory.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians gave the Athletics' hopes of gaining on the Yankees a severe jolt today when they took both ends of a double-header, 9 to 8 and 12 to 7.

The Indians pounded Roy Mahaffey for 12 hits and drove him off the mound after seven innings in the nightcap. Earl Averill, who hit a home run in the first game, cracked two more in the second. The first of the latter two came in the opening inning with one on base and the second with two on in the seventh.

Jimmy Foxx hit his thirty-fourth home run of the season in the A's half of the seventh, high over the roof of the left field stands. Harder went the distance for the Indians, giving the A's 17 hits.

Averill's first homer off Krausse in the ninth inning, with Cleveland leading 8 to 5, proved to be the deciding tally of the first game. In the A's half of the inning eight men batted, four hits were made, three runs were scored, and two men were on base when Vosmik got under Cramer's fly for the third out.

The Athletics made 19 hits off Russell and Connally, while Cleveland had 11. Walberg, who yielded 10 of these in eight innings, lost his eighth game of the season.

The A's scored three runs in the second inning off Russell. Three of Cleveland's runs came in the fifth when McNair and Williams committed damaging errors. In the seventh Cramer lost Morgan's tall fly in the sun and two Indian runs counted.

INDIANS 9-12; A'S 8-7.

CUBS DEFEATED BY BRAVES, 8-2; STREAK HALTED

"Huck" Betts Hurls Victory, Giving Up Seven Hits.

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—"Huck" Betts and his Boston teammates stopped the Cub winning streak at five straight today, 8 to 2, and shoved the Chicago entry in the heated National league flag race two and one-half games behind the pace-setting Pirates.

Three hits, a wild throw by young Stanley Hack and a base on balls gave Betts a five-run working margin in the first inning and the Brave rookie sailed on to an easy triumph. He allowed but seven hits, two of which came in the final inning, and would have scored a shutout except for a wild throw in the first inning by Urbanski that spoiled a double play and permitted two Cub runners to score. Pat Malone was the victim of the first-round Brave assault. His downfall started with a pass to Maranville and extended on a wild throw of Urbanski's grounder by Hack that sent Maranville to third and saved Urbanski at first.

"Biff" Berger cracked out the first of his three singles for the day, scoring Maranville. Worthington followed with another single to score Urbanski and Leach swept the bags with a triple to left. Burleigh Grimes relieved Malone at that point with nobody out but Leach came in with run No. 5 on his wild pitch after two were down. A walk to Urbanski, Berger's second single and a long double by Leach netted two more runs for insurance in the second after which Grimes settled down so effectively that he permitted but one hit. The hit, Berger's third, was coupled with another wild throw by Hack, so another Brave run came home.

Today's victory was the first in three starts for the Braves in the present series.

The Double Shadow.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 11.—The number of quivering pulses in California has reached excessive proportions this week. And there is a good reason for the double shadow that hangs over this fair land.

In the first place it might be noted that California is extremely proud of her football teams—U. S. C., Stanford, California, U. C. L. A., St. Mary's, Santa Clara, the Olympic Club, etc. The state is practically cluttered up with 200-pounders, or 215-pounders, who can run, block, tackle, kick and pass.

In the second place California is justly proud of her tennis stars, who happen to include two champions in Ellsworth Vines and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody.

In the third place California is entitled to stand up and give three cheers for California's great crew, one of the greatest of all time at any distance.

But in a way I believe a large part of California's athletic affection is given to a pair of young runners by the name of Frank Wykoff and Benny Eastman—and these two stars are threatened with serious maladies by the name of Metcalfe, Toppino and Carr.

The Big Argument.

Please don't figure that Wykoff, Eastman, Toppino, Metcalfe and Carr will dominate the two-day show at Palo Alto this week-end.

They are only part of an all-star cast. But for all of that they will be a big part of the Palo Alto story.

Up to a short while ago Wykoff and Eastman were held to be among the invincibles at 100 and 400-meter distances. They had tied or broken more world's records than any other running pair. They have always given great performances, especially in the last year.

They are both fine boys—the type that any state can look upon with pride.

But the fact remains that California isn't any to ocertain that Benny Eastman can trim Bill Carr, of Pennsylvania, at 400 meters, and California isn't any too sure that Frank Wykoff can pull away from Ralph Metcalfe, of Marquette, or Emmett Toppino, of Loyola, whose flying feet have also been clicking off record-time through the past two months.

The Barricade.

When Carr beat Eastman at Berkeley 10 days ago the first query that flew all over the state was about this—"What happened to Benny? What was the matter wtih Eastman?"

And then the idea began to circulate that Carr, after all, had run the 440 in 47 seconds on a slow track—where more than one veteran timer had clocked him at 46.6 or 46.8.

No one has to ask what happened to any runner who was beaten by this pace. Carr has a tremendous finishing drive—he can beat 10 flat for the 100—which means that he can beat any quarter-miler living who can't open up a protecting gap before the stretch is reached.

If Carr can stick to Eastman's pace four-fifths of the route, the crowd is fairly sure to see a flash of red and blue in the lead at the tape.

Eastman must run his man down before they hit the stretch, and Carr is no autumn leaf to be shaken loose at the first gust.

The answer is that here are the two greatest quarter-milers, or 400-meter runners, in track history, and the winner will have to set a new record to collect the chaplet of wild apple blossoms.

Wykoff, Toppino, Metcalfe.

There are any number of sage observers around who believe that Wykoff will have more trouble with Toppino, the New Orleans sprinter, than he will have with Metcalfe, the Marquette meteor. There is a feeling that Metcalfe is away too slowly to stop Wykoff at 100 meters or 100 yards. But if the Flying Ebony of the cinder path was timed correctly in various starts this spring he will be no part of a floundering tortoise on his way to the wire.

The Olympic Village.

Meanwhile the Olympic village is beginning to look like a boom town in the days of the old west when the fragrant odor of gold was discovered in near-biy hills. A boom town minus the bar and the light fantastic toe of the dance hall. These are far away and long ago.

No one is any busier here than the Argentinians, who have suddenly realized that the Finns are coming and the Finns mean trouble for any rival runners who look beyond the 1,500-meter range. Zabala, Lutti and Rina, especially, look to be in top form.

The arrival of Nurmi, the great hiker, will be one of the week's features. He is now wearing a puffed-up ankle, but he will be hard to beat at the marathon running on one leg.

Japan's war camp in the flowered village is another busy sector. The Japanese expect to have the largest invading team sent across and they are taking a shot at almost every sport. They even expect Gon and Tsuda, their marathon stars, to give Nurmi a battle if the eminent Finn is finally allowed to exhibit his stride and his stop-watch when the games start.

One of the few village complaints registered so far was from the Irish sector—that a cook named Callahan or O'Donnell didn't know how to cook potatoes. It is not known yet whether he was attempting the German or French fried recipe. What good is a League of Nations if an Irishman can't get his potatoes properly arranged?

League Directors Back Suspension Of Bill Dickey

CLEVELAND, July 11.—(AP)—Suspension of Bill Dickey, star catcher of the New York Yankees, was sustained today by directors of the American league after they listened to the protest of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees.

The directors vote was 3 to 0, with Colonel Ruppert, the league's fourth director, not voting because of his direct interest in the case. Those voting were Colonel Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians; Robert Quinn, head of the Boston club, and Harry Grabiner, vice president and secretary of the Chicago club, who was acting for Louis J. Comsikey, president.

Dickey was suspended for 30 days by President William Harridge last Saturday for a punch that broke the jaw of Carl Reynolds, Washington outfielder.

BETTERS RECORD.

Ruth Osburn, of Shelbyville, Mo., is credited with having bettered the world's record for her sex with the discus. Her best toss is 108 feet 2 1-4 inches.

ED DON GEORGE MEETS LEHMAN HERE TONIGHT

Jim Hesslyn Faces Scotty Darkins, Newcomer, at City Auditorium.

There will be the spectacle of a wrestler who has lifted himself by his own bootstraps, so to speak, and of another who got his start as a college football player, as the feature of L. C. Warren's card at the city auditorium tonight.

Charley Lehman, the likeable Texan, who it is said used to practice his holds on unruly steers, worked himself up in the profession, while Ed Don George, his opponent, after a whirlwind career as a college football star at Michigan, was equally sensational in wrestling, which he took up professionally immediately after leaving the campus.

George won himself a title in practically no time at all and earned a decision over Gus Sonnenberg, exponent of the flying tackle, which he exploited as a Simon-pure against college football opponents. But Sonnenberg later avenged himself and took George's title away.

There is this about George, however. He is one of the game's most colorful grapplers. He dotes on action.

Lehman is probably the best opponent in this section that Warren could get for George. The big Texan, with the long arms, is a relentless foe, and very powerful.

These two will meet in the two-hour bout of the card.

Scotty Darkins, a newcomer, meets Jim Hesslyn, the Australian, in the one-hour semi-windup.

A novel feature to be included on the program is the first public appearance of the drum and bugle corps of the American Legion. The corps recently won first honors in a state-wide competitive drill at Macon. Dressed in full regalia, the corps will be led by Scrappy O'Sullivan, commander.

Tickets can be secured up to late hour today at Five Points Soda Company and Tom Pitts' old stand. Reservations can be made by telephoning Main 1134.

RALSTON CARGILL WILL BACK TICKET

Columbus Man Outlines Platform as Candidate for Congress.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 11.—Ralston Cargill, local candidate for congress from the third district, is the first of the three candidates to announce his platform. Mr. Cargill, layman, is opposed by two lawyers, Hon. B. T. Castellow, Cuthbert, and Hon. H. E. Coates, Hawkinsville.

The platfrom as announced by Mr. Cargill is largely along the lines of the national democratic platform recently adopted in Chicago, except that he touches upon several matters of local interest.

Mr. Cargill begins the preamble to his platform with the terse statement: "I am a democrat," and adds, "as a life-long democrat, I am supporting the democratic nominees, Roosevelt and Garner, and the platform on which they are running."

Flays Republican Party.

In his preamble, Mr. Cargill flays the republican party, holding that they are responsible for the distress throughout the country, and adds: "They have throttled individual efforts and have destroyed individual enterprise."

Launching a further attack on the republican party, Mr. Cargill says: "For eight years following the World War, the republican party sowed to the winds, and now Mr. Hoover is reaping the whirlwind of havoc and ruin which was bound to follow."

The candidate pledges himself to do all in his power to bring about a change. He states: "When elected to congress, I pledge myself to do all in my power to bring about a drastic change in our governmental policies in an effort to restore employment and to bring permanent prosperity to our people."

Unemployment: "Extension of federal credit to the states to provide unemployment relief, and also an expansion of the federal program of useful and necessary construction in order to provide work instead of a dole.

The Farmer: "The restoration of the farmer and the rebuilding of the farm home. The third district is largely agricultural . . . mortgages are being foreclosed and many farm homes sold for taxes. This situation can be relieved through a better financing of farm loans at low rate of interest . . . and the aid of the national and state governments in marketing. . . . Here in the third district we need canning plants to can our surplus fruit and vegetables . . . we need more cows and cheese and butter plants . . . we need more pigs and packing plants.

Army and Navy: "An army and navy adequate for national defense based on a survey of all facts affecting the existing establishments.

Anti-Trust Laws: "Strict and impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

Prohibition: Supporting the democratic platform and "as this is a democratic government, I think the people should be given an opportunity to say what they want. As your congressman, I shall vote for submission of the repeal or the retention of the eighteenth amendment to representative conventions in the states called solely to act on this question and leave it to the people to express themselves.

War Veterans: "The full measure of justice and generosity for all war veterans.

Mr. Cargill opposes: "The cancellation of the debts owing to the United States by foreign countries, the improper and excessive use of money in political activities, paid lobbyists of special interests, the Hawley-Smoot tariff laws."

In conclusion, Mr. Cargill states that when "elected, I shall endeavor to live, both in spirit and in letter, the consecrated tenet of the democratic party, "equal rights to all, special privileges to none."

Mills Linked With Efforts To Split Women Wet Ranks

BY ROBERT ST. JOHN.

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Secretary Mills, frequently a Hoover administration spokesman, was named today as having had a hand in the protest of 64 women anti-prohibitionist against their organization's resolution favoring Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In Boston, however, Mills denied having seen the petition.

The treasury chief was about to open the republican campaign with a speech lashing out at the democratic nominee, when his name cropped up in the controversy within the ranks of the women's organization for national prohibition reform. The cabinet member was brought into the anti-prohibition wrangle by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, former republican national committee woman and now head of the wet group.

She said she had been informed he helped draft the protest against her executive committee's action in urging support for the New York governor.

A few hours later Mrs. Cortlandt D Barnes, one of the signers, acknowledged that Mills participated in the discussion which led to the signing of the statement.

"I talked with Mr. Mills only on the technical phase of whether or not the statement's reference to the interpretation of the republican prohibition plank was the correct one," she said.

"Mr. Mills did not instigate the statement, which I suppose originated with me. . . .

The interpretation of the republican plank on which Mrs. Barnes said she consulted Mills follows:

"At their recent conventions both parties declared in favor of submitting to the people such an amendment (eliminating prohibition from the federal constitution).

"The real difference between them is the course to be followed after repeal. They differ as to methods of control and regulation of the liquor traffic.

Mrs. Sabin said she could find "no comfort" in the petition of the 64 protestors, but that Bishop James Cannon Jr., and dry organizations might be able to.

"I have ready the petition which I was told was drafted with the help of the distinguished secretary of the treasury, Ogden Mills, advising me that 64 Long Island women will not vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt," Mrs. Sabin said.

Hits Interpretation.

"That is their prerogative. But when these ladies state that both parties declare in favor of submitting to the people an amendment eliminating national prohibition, they are reading into the republican plank an interpretation not justified by the wording.

"For not only does the republican plank fail to advocate repeal, but it specifically states: 'We do not favor submission limited to the issue or retention or repeal.'"

The controversy was heightened by the resignation from the organization of Mrs. William W. Hoppin, former republican co-leader in the fifteenth assembly district; Mrs. Agnes Gifford Jones, of South Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Joseph W. Alsop, republican kinswoman of the New York governor, and three members of the Connecticut state central republican committee.

Mrs. Cortlandt Nicoll, member of Mrs. Sabin's executive committee, said neither she nor Mrs. Sabin were worried over the resignations.

"We have 1,005,000 members," she stated, "and even if 20,000 were to resign, the loss would be comparatively small. Furthermore, we expect to gain more than we lose."

While this exchange was going on, the new democratic standard bearer left on a sea cruise with three of his sons.

His campaign manager, James A. Farley, stayed behind to hold some important political conferences with democratic leaders from around the country. He expects to board one of the boats trailing the governor tomorrow.

COX PLANS EMPLOYMENT FOR JOBLESS "WHITE COLLARS"

PITTSBURGH, July 11.—(AP)—Jobless "white collar" men will be paid $2 a day to expound the principles of the jobless-liberty party under a plan announced today by aides of Rev. James R. MISSISSIPPI TO HAVE FULL REPUBLICAN TICKET

JACKSON, Miss., July 11.—(AP)—For the first time in nearly half a century, the republican party of Mississippi will place a full congressional ticket in the field for the fall elections.

NEW JERSEY REPUBLICANS RENEW HOOVER PLEDGE

TRENTON, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—The republican state committee pledged anew today its support to the Hoover-Curtis ticket and reaffirmed its state platform calling for repeal of the 18th amendment.

The joint meeting of the committeemen and county chairmen and vice chairmen was called, E. Bertram Mott, state chairman, said to show that there is "no uncertainty that we're republicans and not mugwumps."

GLADYS GLAD ON BEAUTY

"America's Most Famous Beauty."

Summer is certainly a grand and glorious season—but there's no denying that it does have its bad features, too. Take eyelashes, for instance. They sure can become a problem during the warm months for the girl whose lashes are not naturally dark. For unless she's wise, she's likely to have quite a bit of difficulty in keeping her lashes prettily darkened during this time.

No girl can expect to appear at her loveliest if, after a dip in the briny, she emerges with dark rivulets of mascara running down her cheeks. She can't expect to keep the boys interested and intrigued on the tennis court or dance floor if, after a bit of exertion, her eyes become ringed with dark smudges. And so she's got to be very, very careful in her choice of mascara during the summer season.

There are now three different types of mascara in use. They are the cream mascaras, the cake mascaras, and the liquid mascaras. And of them all, I think that, as a rule, the liquid mascaras are the type best suited for summer use. For liquid mascaras usually are the ones that are the least affected by swimming, tears or moisture.

The cream mascaras are very easy to apply, and present a pleasingly natural appearance. They also give luster to the lashes. But if applied too copiously, they may, on a hot day, tend to smudge somewhat. The cake mascaras give the lashes a very lovely appearance, but are seldom waterproof. That's quite logical when you consider that cake mascaras are usually applied with a brush and water. And what goes on with water naturally must come off with water. The liquid mascaras, especially the alleged waterproof ones, then, are really best for use during the moist, hot summer days.

Dyeing the lashes, of course, is another way of keeping them darkened without danger of any smudging or running. But no amateur should ever attempt to do such work herself. If a girl wishes to resort to dyeing she should be sure to have this done by an expert in a reliable beauty shop only. And she should use a good lubricant on her lashes afterward, in order to counteract any drying effects of the dyeing.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Freckles.

Green Eyes and Bubbles M.: Freckles are not always blemishing, as they prove quite becoming to some folks. If they do not become you, however, a mild bleach such as lemon juice or peroxide may be used to lighten them.

Steaming.

G. M. S.: Steaming, if done too often, may tend to make the hair dry and brittle. Hot oil treatments will counteract any drying effect, however. Such treatments are especially advisable for hair that is split at the ends.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coins for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

IRISH-BRITISH RIFT WIDENS AT DUBLIN

Governor-General McNeill's Removal From Erin Is Threatened.

DUBLIN, July 11.—(AP)—Removal of the British king's representntive from the Irish Free State was a possibility tonight as people of the Free State read for the first time the letters between Governor General James McNeill and President Eamon De Valera over alleged snubs to the former.

Censorship which President De Valera had imposed after the correspondence was made public last night by Mr. McNeill, in demanding an apology for what he considered slights, was raised as the two officials met for a conference.

They had not spoken in months and there was a possibility that Mr. McNeill, an appointee of King George, might be removed from office in the quarrel, which was without precedent in British Empire relations.

"I know you have a majority in the dail and I know you can remove me," he wrote in one of his letters to the republican president.

The Free State executive council, which De Valera heads as president, had forbidden the governor general to make public the correspondence. When he disclosed it in defiance of the ban, President De Valera promptly forbade its publication in newspapers under the "official secrets act."

Even newspapers from northern Ireland containing the correspondence were confiscated as they entered Dublin or were brought across the border by train passengers.

This afternoon, however, the Free State government released the letters for publication. At the same time the Free State cabinet released a personal letter from President Eamon de Valera, which Mr. McNeill did not publish.

This letter was in reply to the governor general's first complaint regarding the incident at the French legation in April, when Vice President Sean O'Kelly and Minister of Defense Frank Aiken left a dance as soon as Mr. McNeill arrived.

It contained President De Valera's pledge that such an incident would not occur again if the governor general's social engagements were communicated to the president in advance. He said there were other reasons, too, why it was advisable that he should be kept informed of the governor general's public engagements.

As far as Governor General McNeill was concerned today, the next step lay with the De Valera government. He indicated he would not resign.

Premier Herriot Wins Vote of Confidence

PARIS, July 12.—(Tuesday)—(UP)—Premier Edouard Herriot's government won a vote of confidence on its finance bill early today, by a vote of 360 to 179, after an all-night debate.

Thirty-five amendments to the government's bill, which seeks to balance a budget requiring the slashing of at least 1,000,000,000 francs from the estimates, or increasing revenue by that sum, were introduced before today's debate began.

The premier himself saved his voice and arguments during the first seven hours of debate, reserving his power for the final drive to pass his measure.

Earlier in the day, Herriot had received the approval of the French cabinet of his accomplishments at Lausanne. The cabinet at the same time took occasion to order cancellation of the usual festivities of Bastille day (July 14) as a mark of respect for the victims of the Prometheе disaster.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING IN MINE DISORDERS

BELLAIRE, Ohio, July 11.—(AP)—One picket is dead, a working miner was wounded probably fatally and three alleged reporters of a New York communist newspaper were arrested in fresh outbreaks of trouble in the Ohio bituminous coal strike over the week-end.

Steven Bowen, 40, of Buchtel, a picket at the Millfield mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Company, died today from a bullet wound sustained yesterday when he and other pickets are alleged to have tried to stop Clarence Grant, a working miner, from reporting for duty.

Gail Gamble, 23, employed at the Powhatan mine, in Belmont county, was wounded, probably fatally, when fired on by a group of alleged pickets who were in ambush near the mine property.

Style by Annette

A LIKEABLE LITTLE MORNING FROCK.

It is a dress you can don when you are "doing things" and feel just right in. It has no fussy bits and ends to get in the way of your gardening, making the house attractive, etc.

One's mind naturally runs to thoughts of dimity prints, batiste prints, etc., for such a dress. But there are other materials such as dotted piques, striped or plain linen, cotton mesh, tub silks, etc., which could enter the running, too. For this model, a blue and white dimity print with blue bias binds was chosen.

Style No. 304 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 2 3-4 yards of 39-inch material with 7 3-4 yards of binding.

Our large fashion magazine will help you economize. It includes styles for the miss, the stout, the matron and adorable models for the kiddies. Also modern embroidery for the home, lingerie, pajamas, etc.

Price of book, 15 cents.

Price of pattern, 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A friend writes discerningly, "I have discovered a valuable truth within the last six months, poverty clears the taste for the simple and beautiful things of life just as coffee clears the taste for a cigaret." Is not this an explication of the statment of J. J. Rousseau that "One does not learn to think until one has suffered?" Is it not a commentary on another classic remark that the most precious things of life are not purchaseable? The word poverty is capable of many interpretations. It is a relative term. Says the reduced millionaire, "Poverty is not so bad once you get the right slant on it." Says the salaried man, "I've been poor all my life." Says the jobless man with the undernourished family: "Poverty is the greatest curse." Says the social worker, "We must rid the world of poverty." Such comments supposedly made about the same condition are in fact made about entirely dissimilar conditions.

The reduction of the millionaire's financial status to that of his poorer neighbor cannot be construed as poverty. The salaried man's cut in stipend doesn't reduce his to penury. But the jobless man's inability to feed his family is the personification of poverty and the social worker's program applies to him and not to these others whose experience with enforced economies has been salutary and altogether satisfactory. When the flour barrel is empty and the wood is reduced to ashes and the elbows are out and the feet are on the ground, poverty cannot clear the taste for the beautiful things of life. There are no beautiful things in life to the famished man, there are no salutary experiences of any kind, there are no satisfactions to be derived from any source. The unpurchasable and precious things rise up spectre-like to mock him. The hungry mouths of his children, the dull, desireless eyes of his wife, are bitter reminders of his impotence to cope with poverty. What have you for that man? Pity? Yes, but if it doesn't translate itself into pocket change it is worse than nothing. For such men and women this talk about poverty is impertinent.

The poverty we are discussing is another sort. It is not penury. It is not pauperism, no more than it is plenty. It is the sort of financial condition that demands self-denial, strict economy, dollar-stretching and a complete reorganization of thinking and living standards. It is the sort of poverty that demands patching, and repairing, and pulling out thin ends to make them meet. It is the sort of middle ground about which the wise king spoke when he cried out: "Give me neither poverty nor riches, feed me with food convenient for me, lest I be full and deny Thee and say, Who is the Lord? or lest I be poor and steal and take the name of the Lord my God in vain." A far cry that is to the cry of the twentieth century citizen who has exclaimed: "Give me wealth, it is power. Give me luxury, it is a necessity for me. Give me peace and plenty, it's coming to me. The world owes it to me."

In this middle ground one may find peace and contentment. In this middle ground one may find the purest joy in living. "The crackling of thorns is not so bad a fire." The unbuttered loaf is sustaining. The old motor makes just as many revolutions as a new one. The outmodel gown still fits the figure and the patched pants are subject for many a joke. Here sympathy is keener, love is more unselfish, friendship is more precious, for misery loves company. Character is more sterling for the purging that has taken place. These are some of the blessings of the middle ground, and if you haven't discovered them it is your own fault. They are not buried deep. They are near the surface. You have but to scratch the ground of the new experience to find them.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Scoring the Slam Trick.

As Mr. Charles H. Weissenbach, the holder of the South hand pictured below, admits, the bidding of this Slam was optimistic in the extreme. Although the combined hands held 7 honor-tricks, the singleton heart in the North hand was a warning of the duplication of values, and the weakness of the chosen trump suit was such as to make probable that a trick might be lost there as well. However, Mr. Weissenbach explained the bidding by saying that it was the last rubber of the evening, and he was considerably minus on the score. Probably that is as good an explanation as any offered. The play, however, needs no excuse, as throughout Mr. Weissenbach's handling of the cards was sparkling, indeed.

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠ A K 10 6 ♡ 5 ◇ A J 8 5 ♣ A 6 5 2
West: ♠ Q J 9 3 2 ♡ Q ◇ 10 9 7 6 4 ♣ 10 9
East: ♠ 5 4 ♡ J 9 7 6 ♡ 4 2 ◇ K Q ♣ Q 8 2
South: ♠ 8 7 ♡ A K 10 8 3 ◇ 3 2 ♣ K J 7 4

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1♠	Pass
2♡	Pass	3NT	Pass
4♣	Pass	5♣	Pass
5♡	Pass	6♠	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Redbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

There is no occasion for further comment on the bidding, which I have already discussed.

Against the redoubled club contract, West opened the singleton heart, and when South surveyed his combined holdings, he momentarily regretted his optimism. However, he manfully went to work, winning the first trick with the Ace in his own hand, realizing that he must use Dummy's trumps to some extent in ruffing out his losing hearts. As the Queen of hearts was probably a singleton, he at once returned the suit, West ruffing with the 9 and Dummy over-ruffing with the Ace. A club was now led from Dummy, and the finesse of the Knave held, West's Ten dropping and thus marking the remaining clubs in the East hand. South now led the third round of hearts, ruffing with a trump in Dummy. Next the Ace and King of spades were led from Dummy, followed by the 6, upon which East discarded a heart and Declarer ruffed with the club 4. The King of hearts was then led, West discarded a spade and Dummy a diamond. This was followed with the Ten, which was ruffed with Dummy's last trump. The Ace of diamonds in Dummy was then laid down, and Mr. Weissenbach's contract was secure. To the eleventh trick, the Ten of spades was led. East now held the diamond King and the club Queen-eight. He elected to ruff the spade with the 8 spot. South discarded his losing diamond, and then cashed the twelfth and thirteenth tricks with his trumps.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Hands containing 7 honor-tricks should not be bid for a Slam when the players can see danger of duplication of values, which makes the attainment of the Slam improbable in actual play. The partnership holding should not only eliminate the possibility of losing tricks to adversely held Aces, but should assure sufficient playing-tricks, which ordinarily requires favorable distribution.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠ 4 3 2 ♡ A K 9 4 3 ◇ J 10 4 ♣ 8 4
West: ♠ 10 7 5 ♡ Q J 10 6 5 ◇ Q 8 5 2 ♣ 7
East: ♠ J 9 8 6 ♡ 8 7 2 ♡ 9 6 3 ◇ — ♣ Q 6 5
South: ♠ A K Q ♡ — ◇ A K 7 ♣ A K J 10 9 3 2

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Are you handicapped at the office?

To put in a full day's work, you need a full man's strength. A man, half-sick from constipation, has less chance to succeed in today's keen competition.

This insidious condition often causes headaches, loss of energy, sleeplessness. It takes the edge from your working hours.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs — so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SYNOPSIS.

Antoinette Brookes, 18 years old, Tony to family and friends, was orphaned when her father and mother were killed in an automobile accident in Centerville, her home town. She had just graduated from high school and had intended to go to art school, but she learned that for the last six months of his life her father had fought off bankruptcy. As a child Tony had taken painting lessons and at 16 she turned her love of line and color to dress designing. When her father's estate was settled, Tony had slightly less than $200. Tony's capital was down to $12 when she got a job as helper in Madame Simone's dress shop in New York. A month later the saleswoman she assisted quit suddenly and Tony was promoted. She was so frank in advising women what they should wear that she lost important sales and was dismissed. The same day Leslie (Lee) Moran, a model, also was discharged. She had no money and Tony shared her third floor back room at Mrs. Higgins' with her. Lee became discouraged at their failure to get jobs and said she was going out to look for some fun. While Lee was out, Tom Stewart, a young engineer, who was in love with her, called at Mrs. Higgins'. Tony was unable to receive him there and they talked as they walked. Tony was thrilled merely to be with Tom. He attracted her greatly. Lee returned at 2 a. m., laden with bags of food, which had been bought by her "uncle," whom she had met while taxi dancing. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT X.

Mr. Leonard's friend from a mid-west city was Donald Kemp. A vital man in his late thirties, with close-knit muscles and determined jaw. A handsome man. An eagle of a man. With an air of command. Waiters invariably conducted Donald Kemp to tables, his party following. Taxi drivers asked Donald Kemp where he wished to be driven, no matter who of the party might have signaled the cab.

Donald Kemp looked at Tony Brookes and the steel girder that was his spine flexed. During the remainder of the evening he excluded all except Tony from the party. He was at no pains to conceal his singleness of interest. Lee and "Lenny" were present but they were negligible. Tony was flattered by the assiduity of this dynamo, a little frightened. He was fascinating when he smiled, white glistening teeth mechanical in their regularity and eyes that changed from smouldering grey ash to warm living coals.

Now the evening was coming to its close. The band in the Club Montmartre was strumming muted syncopation while its leader crooned of "moon and you."

"I'll be in New York again soon"—Donald Kemp's eyes were on Tony—"very soon. I wonder if you'd be good enough to spare me some time! I see you like the theater. So do I. We might make a pretty thorough job of finding what the theater is doing.

Tony thought: How nice of him. I love the theater. Some day I'll design gowns for it. Should she accept? There was challenge in his eyes. He knew their meeting was unconventional.

"Perhaps," she said. "It's kind of you to ask me. I'm planning to take a course at the Art League evenings. That will keep me busy, I expect."

"If you're as generous as I believe you to be you'll let me have an occasional one of your evenings off."

Kemp was clever. He made refusal impossible.

"Gladly." Tony smiled into his eyes. Challenge gave way to an electric anticipation.

There was a delay about getting their wraps. The check girl in the Club Montmartre had muddled the numbers. Tony noticed a hawklike woman, ridiculously rouged and coiled, pacing back and forth just outside the cloakroom in the foyer. Her shoes were too tight, so that she had a peculiar hobbling gait which accentuated the sway of her ample hips contoured in metallic cloth. The check girl discovered the wraps at last and Lee led the way to the foyer. In the door she came face to face with the rouged woman who suddenly ceased her pacing and stood to block Lee's exit.

"You are with Adam Leonard!" Not an inquiry, an accusation.

Lee drew back. There was venom in the woman. Her shoulders hunched.

"Why—why—"

"Don't deny it." The woman raised her voice. "I saw you come out of that room. A dancing room. Dancing!" What a horrible laugh. Like a file against a raw quick.

"Why, yes. I came out with Mr. Leonard." Lee had recovered her scattered senses.

"Ah, you admit it. You're one of the bold hussies. I'll see what can be done about that. My lawyer will know. Now you can clear out. My husband is going home—with me."

"Don't hold it against Adam." Donald Kemp's voice was a hammer struck against rock. Street lights showed the jut of his jaw, outthrust and rigid.

A tide of shame rose in Tony, driving out the tremolo that had taken possession of her knees and her elbows. That woman was Mr. Leonard's wife. She had been stalking them, watching, waiting for the propitious moment to make the sort of scene people would stop to wonder and snicker over. Her tongue was a lash tipped with vitriol. Obscene Lower than the gutter. How could a woman soil herself so, for surely the ability to pour out such offal of language as this one had managed to do presupposed the knowledge of it.

Donald Kemp had put a sharp period to the woman's tirade.

"You are mistaken, Madame," he said, inserting his compact figure between the woman and Lee. "Hold your tongue, or I will call an officer. You are a stranger to me and to these young ladies who are my guests. Your conduct constitutes assault."

"Come, Clara." Adam Leonard, strangely gray and old, had taken the woman's arm, urged her toward the door. She snatched it away, shrieking her fury in high-pitched hysteria:

"Come Clara! So it's Clara now, is it? After them hussies, I'll Clara you! I'll show you how Clara pays off your kind of cheats. Dancing. He dances. Ha, ha—dances—ha, ha, ha—!"

The taxi door had slammed against the shrill siren. Donald Kemp hurried Tony and Lee away from the hateful scene into a cab. They were being driven toward Mrs. Higgins' drab house.

"He could have told me he had a wife," Lee said. The words sounded brittle. As if there was no substance in them. As though they didn't much matter.

"Oh, he should have!" Tony's resentment flared. "How could he let it be possible for such a thing to happen? He must have known it might. It was selfish of him, cruel."

Donald Kemp was silent for so long that Tony thought he must be offended. She persisted:

"Mr. Leonard should have told her to decide whether or not she wanted to go about with him. Shouldn't he, Mr. Kemp?"

Kemp started, called back from an absorbing dream. But he had heard.

"I'm the wrong judge," he said curtly. "I know Adam's story. It's pretty hard to see life pass you by, love and laughter, good companionship, respect of friends, the rapture the right kind of woman brings to a man, the haven of home, even the clash of a decent hate. I can't blame Adam for daring to strike out and try to stop the passerby, Life—for a stolen interval."

"At the sacrifice of friendship, of decency?" Tony demanded.

"At the sacrifice of anything." Donald Kemp's teeth glistened where his lips were drawn from them. He could snarl. He could be ruthless. Tony shivered. Better close the cab window. The cold wind cut through coats.

Donald Kemp was talking in a concise, a legal strain:

"If there are repercussions, if Clara Leonard attempts to annoy you in any way, you are to notify me at once. I'll leave you my address. Wire, or get me by 'phone. Reverse the charge. I reach my office at 10 in the morning. That is the best hour to get me. I don't think you'll be troubled further. She didn't know your names, either of them, or she would have broadcast them. She's done the damage she set out to do. . . . Poor old Adam!"

Tony thought: Donald Kemp can be tender as well as ruthless.

BOARD INSPECTORS LEAVING JOB TO AID FELTON, IS CHARGE

Charges that inspectors of the Georgia public service commission "who are paid by the taxpayers of this state" are spending their time tacking up signs of Jule W. Felton, appointee and candidate for the full term vacated by the death of the late Calvin W. Parker, were made in Atlanta Monday by James A. Reid, of Monroe, one of Felton's opponents.

Charging that the inspectors, instead of attending to their duties in connection with the motor carrier laws, are distributing literature for Felton and otherwise boosting his candidacy, Reid said:

"This is not a report or rumor. I refer specifically to the activities of Scott Beaton in southeast Georgia, who, I am informed, is neither on his vacation nor on leave from the commission.

"While I don't expect to break this 'racket' up, I am satisfied it is information the people of Georgia ought to have. It is being operated on an extensive scale and I am now pledging that if they elect me to the commission I will put a stop to it."

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Stocks pulled farther away from the June low today, making a sprightly advance in the last hour.

Support for the rails and a brisk retreat of shorts in Auburn Auto were among the technical developments. Also, Wall Street saw definite signs of congressional adjournment. Domestic bonds were encouragingly firm.

The short squeeze in Auburn brought an extreme gain of 13 1-2 points. The close was only a point under the top. Tobaccos provided considerable strength, American Tobacco "B" and Liggett & Myers "B" rising more than 2. United States Steel preferred, and Case and Allied Chemical were also up 2 or so, while Steel common, and a few rails, gained about 1 to 1 1-2.

The early market watched American Telephone, and Coca-Cola make new lows, but buying of carrier shares quickly put the brakes on reactionary tendencies. Trading eventually became more active, although sales totaled only 596,117 shares.

A month ago brokers were confident that dispersal of the national legislature would be greeted enthusiastically by the market; but current forecasts of what can be expected are not so unanimous, especially since the market refused to be stirred by the Lausanne settlement.

Statistical services and brokerage houses commentators agreed that the market's fundamental concern now is the depression's grip on domestic business, aggravated by mid-summer dullness in basic lines.

Foreign Markets

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON—Having anticipated the Lausanne agreement prices on the stock exchange eased due to lack of support and profit-taking, the latter being especially noticeable in industrials and German bonds. Japanese and Brazilian bonds were steady. The market closed easy.

PARIS—Trading on the bourse was quiet and prices declined on profit-taking. French rentes were also lower. The closing was heavy.

BERLIN—Prices on the boerse were weaker and the closing fluctuant.

Sugar, Coffee, Rice.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Raw sugar was quiet today. Prices were unchanged at 3.05. The undertone, however, was steady. Refiners seemed willing to make further purchases at last paid prices of 3.05 for spots. Holders generally were asking 3.10.

Final prices were 1 point higher to 1 net lower. Volume was smaller and as a rule the trade was inclined to limit fresh commitments.

After opening 1 point higher to 1 point lower near months gained another point on covering and some buying by trade and Cuban interests. The market eased later, final prices being the lowest of the session.

Approximate sales were only 16,450 tons, and these included 5,300 tons in exchanges. July closed .97, September 1.03, December 1.05, January 1.02, March 1.03, May 1.08, and July 1.13.

Refined was unchanged at the new basis of 3.90 to 4.00 which became effective last week.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 5 points down, at 5.65. Receipts, none; shipments, 11; stocks, 160,491.

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Cotton was lower today under realizing, liquidation and scattered selling. October contracts closed at 5.82 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 6 to 11 points.

Bulges of a few points met increased selling and the market turned easier. A fairly favorable view of the weather outlook and talk of an easier technical position following the advances of last week were factors on the decline. July sold off to 5.67 and December to 5.94, making net declines of 8 to 12 points on active positions. Closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest.

Southern and New Orleans selling was reported early. Offerings from these sources were not much in evidence, however, and at times contracts seemed comparatively scarce. Buying was not sufficiently active to cause more than slight rallies.

Liverpool was credited with selling some cotton here while demand was attributed largely to trade interests and brokers with Japanese connections.

Liverpool cables reported hedging and general liquidation in that market on the better weather report. Exports today 1,675, making 8,519,464 so far this season. Port Receipts 2,300. United States port stocks 3,543,349.

NEW ORLEANS SPOTS DECLINE 6-8 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, July 11.—(AP)—Cotton prices developed a slightly downward trend in decidedly moderate trading today, showing net losses of 6 to 8 points at the close. Lower cables and favorable weather in the belt were the main influences.

The opening was barely steady as Liverpool came in 6 to 8 penny points worse than due. Private cables stated there was hedging and general liquidation owing to better weather in the south. Manchester cables that the feeling there was unsettled and buyers were cautious.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow one penny point down.

Port receipts 2,300; for week 7,266; for season 9,947,729; last season 8,955,215. Exports 1,851; for week 17,077; for season 8,329,477; last season 6,553,210. NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, July 11—Bleachable cottonseed oil was strong with final prices showing net advances of 14 to 22 points. Offerings were light and prices responded to increasing covering promoted by the new highs for hogs, and the sharp advance in lard.

Reports of export sales of lard to the continent the first time in a long while from here, was also a supporting factor. The census bureau reports on consumption will be issued at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The trade is looking for a disappearance of 225,000 barrels during June, against 222,384 in May and 222-991 in June last year. Crude oil was 3½ nominal in the southeast and the valley and 3 cents nominal in Texas. Sales were 12 contracts or 1,800 barrels. Brokers' Views

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, July 11.—While the market is still characterized by lack of immediate incentive for aggressive operations on either side, today's session evidenced a notable improvement in sentiment based largely on a more mature appraisal of importance of Lausanne agreement but also upon expected presidential veto of the relief bill.

Week-end news indicated some spotty improvement in business in mid-western sections but broadly the situation evidently is undergoing no change. The steel industry, while operating at record low rate harbors a more optimtistic attitude with respect to the outlook for the fall months. Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, Case, Sears-Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Atchison, Continental Gas and Public Service appear favorably situated for trading commitments.

DOBBS & CO.

NEW YORK, July 11.—News that final ratification of the Lausanne reparations agreement will depend on the attitude of the United States toward European war debts was a disappointing development over the week-end, but it failed to find reflection in the stock market, aside from a slight selling flurry in the early dealings. The ease with which offerings were taken attested to a strengthened technical position and was in line with our view that last week's decline of the industrial and railroad averages to new bear market lows was accompanied by a further expansion of the professional short account which during the month of June showed an increase of 71,150 shares. Contributing to the uneasiness of the shorts was the sharp advance in Auburn, as it was recalled that the last important rally in the market was heralded by a sudden upward spurt in this volatile issue. In the event that a unification plan is agreed upon, we would look for substantially higher levels for the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit issues and Manhattan modified.

BEER & CO.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The market rallied moderately at the close, the industrials gaining about a point and a half with Auburn leading the advance.

Hoover vetoing the relief bill and more talk of a vote on beer brought the shorts to cover generally in the closing few minutes.

The improvement today was expected last week on news from abroad and should be reflected in higher security prices when the time for advance is ripe.

Would not follow any rally here but would rather dispose of holdings on further strength, expecting to replace them on the next reaction.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, July 11.—After some heaviness during which telephone and a few others made new lows, the market displayed a much better tone. In the final hour prices improved and the activity became quite pronounced.

While the action of the market today was slightly encouraging, prices will have to better last week's highs in order to provide any real encouragement and it is not certain whether they can do this in the face of quarterly reports now beginning to appear.

Cotton Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Relatively poor cables, decidedly restricted rainfall in the south over the week-end and a forecast pointing to generally fair, except for possible showers in Texas, southern Louisiana, and North Carolina, resulted in fairly general selling through commission houses, some further pressure from Liverpool and the continent and additional offerings by a firm frequently handling business for cooperatives under which prices receded to net losses of 8 to 12 points by early afternoon. Offerings were absorbed principally by spot houses, a broker with far eastern connections and speculative shorts. At lower levels offerings showed some decrease and in latter part of the session the market displayed a steady undertone. The sharp recovery in securities and announcement that congress would probably adjourn by Saturday were helpful factors. We consider today's buying of better character than the selling.

BEER & CO.

NEW ORLEANS, July 11.—At the present time, future business and weather conditions are unknown quantities and developments along these lines will be the principal price controlling factors and will be watched very closely. In the meantime, the market will probably continue to advance on wet weather and decline on dry weather, unless there are signs of a general business improvement, in which case a material advance is likely. The latest government weekly weather and crop summary indicated the cotton crop is progressing fairly well as a whole, but that frequent showers favored widespread weevil activity. Due to the better feeling that is being created by the current trend of events and the extremely low price level, we continue to favor buying cotton on substantial declines.

HUBBARD BROS. TO DOBBS & CO.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Sharply lower Liverpool cables this morning brought about some overnight selling on the better weather throughout the belt. Not only did the belt experience better weather but also temperatures have moved upwards so as to bring about a certain amount of warmth that is necessary to the crop. The principal sellers this morning were commission houses and brokers reported to be operating for the farm board. The market, after the early selling, steadied up, remained very steady and showed a tendency to advance towards the early part of the afternoon. We are inclined to favor the purchase of cotton on these setbacks.

Grain Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Weakness in Liverpool and very favorable weather over both winter and spring wheat areas gave our market a lower start, opening prices being right in the bids and it showed practically no rallying power at any time. Local trade is avoiding new commitments pending publication of the government report Thursday. Very little interest in export business and Broomhall reported foreign trade stagnant, although spot prices failed to reflect the decline in futures. The latter, however, recovered most of early loss at the close. The government report this afternoon gave the first official estimate of spring wheat acreage and probable yield and will be the chief market influence for the immediate future.

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—Faced by prospects of more than a billion bushels of wheat supplies in North America this season, wheat values went generally downhill today.

The government July 1 crop estimates issued late this afternoon were construed as decidedly bearish indicating that the 1932 domestic yield of all wheat would total 737,000,000 bushels, against latest private forecasts of 685,000,000.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-4 to 3-4 under Saturday's finish, corn 1-8 off to 1-4 up, oats: unchanged to 1-2 lower, and provisions showing 2 cents to 27 cents advance.

Corn and oats were steadied by 1,930,000 bushels decrease of the corn visible supply. A bearish factor, though, was the heavy tone of the wheat market, together with auspicious crop reports about corn.

Provisions displayed a continued upward trend helped by a fresh advance of hog values.

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Further buying appeared in the bond market today and prices advanced.

United States government obligations displayed a firm tone, advancing from 1-32 to 5-32 point, with exception of the Liberty group which recorded a 1-32 point loss for all three issues.

Selling in German bonds which carried the government 7s off 2 1-4 and the 5 1-2s off 3 1-4 points, respectively, was attributed partly to Adolf Hitler's prediction that the Lausanne agreement would amount to little.

Austrian, Australian, Chilean, Colombian, Finnish, New South Wales and other foreign bonds moved up a point or more.

The utilities registered fairly substantial gains in the domestic group.

The rails were generally fractionally higher.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

(Copyright, 1932, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, July 11.—Improvement in the general stock market today was due primarily to short covering. The increased inquiry for shares came largely from professional bears who were unable to cause further heaviness in the general list, and, recognizing this, began taking back stocks until market conditions warrant renewed offerings.

The Street continued to emphasize the importance of the European reparations agreement but there was little evidence of important people buying. Some foreign interests who were reported as buyers of stocks last week have started to sell because of disappointment over the poor response shown by the American market to the reparations pact.

With the index for car loadings at a new low point, the steel industry prostrated and railroad earnings statements for June expected to mark a further contraction, there is little wonder at the absence of buying power.

TELEPHONE FACTORS.

American Telephone & Telegraph made its usual daily new low price in the forenoon but improved with the rest of the list when the shorts began taking back their stocks. Telephone has been a popular issue with the professional bears.

The most important factor influencing the market for this stock has been the possibility that other state public service commissions will follow the example set by Wisconsin which recently ordered a reduction of 12 1-2 per cent in telephone rates.

While there has been a substantial number of telephones disconnected by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the total for the first six months of this year amounted to a reduction of only 3.8 per cent in the aggregate. This decline is not of proportions to warrant the extreme heaviness shown by the stock.

There seems to be no question in Wall street that the $9 dividend will be reduced if only to influence the various public service commissions.

OIL FIRM.

Firmness in the oil shares early attracted attention. The oil industry continues to show improvement and statements of oil companies for the first six months of this year will make a gratifying showing compared with those for other industries.

The statistical position of the oil industry is such that rumors are current of a probable increase in the near future in the price of mid-continent crude oil.

CONSTRUCTIVE FACTOR.

A factor which probably operated as much as anything else to stir the professional bears into covering their short commitments was the announcement from Washington that congress may adjourn by Saturday.

The Street continues to watch the continued steadiness in the commodities markets. The index for commodity prices last week showed an advance for the third consecutive week.

Some speculative selling of German bonds caused a reaction in the prices of those securities today but the bond market as a whole continued firm.

STOCKHOLDERS ABSENCE BLOCKS MERGER MOVE

RICHMOND, Va., July 11.—(AP)—Lack of a stockholders' quorum today prevented final action on the proposed merger between the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation and the Armour Fertilizer Works. Another meeting was called for August 8.

With the decision to postpone action four weeks, the stockholders approved a motion to have a committee of five independent of the management make an examination of the proposal and communicate its findings to them prior to the adjourned meeting.

Dog Clubs Formed.

Dog license clubs are being established here by the Royal S. P. C. A. in London to enable poor people to get next year's licenses on installments.

CURB SHARES RISE IN DULL SESSION

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—The curb market managed to chalk up a smattering of plus signs in an extremely listless session today. Volume shrank to 60,000 shares, around the smallest of recent years.

Utilities were irregularly higher. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore sagged a point, but recovered later, as commonwealth Edison gained nearly 2 points, and American Gas and Electric and Electric Bond and Share advanced fractionally.

Oils held up well. Standard of Indiana closed 1-8 higher. Kentucky gained nearly a point.

The Swift issues showed outstanding strength in the industrials, as hog prices continued to gain.

Boy Identifies Two In Havana Slaying

HAVANA, July 11.—(AP)—James Arias, a boy who said he was lying upon the sea wall near by and saw the slaying of Miguel Calvo, former head of the Cuban secret police last week, today picked out Archibald and Ramon Durland, whose father was an American, as the occupants of the green automobile from which Calvo was shot.

The Durlands' mother was a Cuban. Their brother, Addison, lives in New York, police said.

The two men were arrested Saturday night.

12 MARATHONS GIRLS TO SLEEP IN PUBLIC

The 12 girls remaining in the marathon dance at the Palais Peachtree will sleep on their cots in the arena tonight, as an added attraction following the floor show which will last from 8 until 12 o'clock, it was announced Monday night by the managers. Contestants will go without rest during the show, and Pat Hambey's Marathoners, with Buddy Whelan, will be featured.

Only 11 couples and a girl solo, Miss Doris Wiebe, of Atlanta, remain in the long-distance dance as the 500th hour is approached. A special show is being arranged by Whelan, master of ceremonies, for next Friday night. Large crowds were in attendance every day last week at the marathon, it was announced.

CUTCLIFFE TO ANSWER STATE CHARGES JULY 19

Walter J. Cutcliffe, who is serving 15 months in the federal penitentiary on liquor charges, will answer state charges July 19 in Fulton superior court in order to pave the way for a parole application, according to pleadings in a habeas corpus petition filed Monday by Attorney Jo Ewing.

Cutcliffe is under state indictments charging assault and battery and lottery operation. The habeas corpus petition alleges that the superintendent of prisons has agreed to instruct Warden A. C. Aderhold, of the federal prison, to produce Cutcliffe in superior court. Judge John D. Humphries issued the writ, returnable July 19. Cutcliffe cannot obtain a federal parole as long as the state indictments are pending, it was said.

On the Air Today

Addresses by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, will be featured in a half-hour international broadcast from London over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST, 2:20 to 2:50 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. Butler and Churchill will be speaking at a Pilgrims' Society dinner arranged in connection with the George Washington bicentennial.

Virginia Arnold, one of Columbia's leading pianists, will be heard in a recital of Gershwin compositions during her broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST from 3:15 to 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Miss Arnold will open her program playing the melody, "Lady Be Good," from the musical comedy of the same name, during which she will interpolate "Somebody Loves Me."

This will be followed by the composer's Preludes 1 and 2; a group, "So Am I" from "Lady Be Good," and "So Are You," from "Show Girl;" the tune, 'Somebody From Somewhere," from the motion picture "Delicious;" and "Love Is Sweeping the Country," from the current musical hit, "Of Thee I Sing."

Alex Gray will sing Homer's "Banjo Song," and Nat Shilkret will conduct "Metropolitan" from Bloom's suite of "Moods" for "Music That Satisfies" tonight at 8 o'clock, over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST.

The romantic baritone also will sing "A Moment in the Dark" and "Time on My Hands." Shilkret will open with his arrangement of "Going to the Promised Land."

RAIL WORKERS HELP PUBLIC, POLLARD SAYS

That the recently organized associations of railroad employes are working for the good of the general public as well as themselves is the assertion of H. D. Pollard, president of the Central of Georgia, in a published statement.

"A great and significant movement for the public welfare is the formation throughout the country of voluntary organizations of railway employes to interest themselves in public affairs," says Mr. Pollard. "Its results will be protection of tax moneys, preservation of highways and the safeguarding of persons and property on those highways. With such purposes the movement deserves and is receiving both the support and cooperation of the general public, indeed in many states taxpayers not employed by the railroads are joining such organizations."

TARZAN THE UNTAMED No. 20

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Upon the brink of a mighty gorge Tarzan at last halted his prisoner. Sternly he motioned the Red to its edge. Petrovich drew back in horror of his unknown fate. Seizing him, the ape-man now broke his terrible silence.

"I am Lord Greystoke," he said. "It was my wife you murdered in the Waziri country. Now you understand why I came for you." Screaming, the Red struggled futilely as Tarzan held him in a mighty grip, high above his head.

Thus, far out into space the ape-man hurled the wretch. For a moment he watched the body hurtling downward. But Tarzan was not fully avenged, for Ivan Karzanoff still lived. Suddenly the silence was broken as—

The ape-man raised his face to Kudu, the sun, and from his mighty chest rose the savage victory cry of the bull ape. Petrovich accounted for, he now sped north toward Kilimanjaro, mightiest of mountains.

WORLD BANK ASKS GOLD STANDARDS

Yellow Metal Held as Best Monetary Unit To Free Flow of Trade.

BY MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER.

BASEL, Switzerland, July 11.—(AP) A strong call for return to the gold standard was issued today by the directors of the Bank for International Settlements with the approval of the representatives of Britain, Japan and Sweden, which are off gold.

The concurrence of the British, Japanese and Swedish representatives was taken as an indication that their governments intend shortly to return to gold.

Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England and the British member of the board, was not present, but his alternate voted for the gold resolution with Mr. Norman's approval. This was the first public indication on the stand of the Bank of England since the nation went off the gold standard last fall.

The gold resolution, adopted by unanimous vote of the board of directors, took on added significance because it came on the heels of the Lausanne agreement, virtually ending reparations, which was signed last week.

The resolution declared that to restore economic normality it will be necessary for that agreement to be followed by "a satisfactory solution of the war debts." This phrase, it was explained subsequently, was not aimed at the United States alone.

Gold, the resolution said, is the "best available monetary mechanism and best suited to make possible a free flow of the world's trade."

For the mechanism of international payments to operate satisfactorily, it will be necessary, the resolution read, "to restore to a reasonable degree the freedom of the movement of goods, services and capital; to complete the solution of reparations reached at Lausanne by a satisfactory solution of the war debts, and to take the necessary steps in each country to restore and maintain the equilibrium of international economy, not only as regards the public revenue and expenditure, but also as regards production costs and the organization of the internal money and capital markets."

G. W. McGarrah, the American head of the World Bank, was authorized to follow up the resolution.

Unusual and tricky details do make frocks appear twice as smart! The charm of this frock is in the contrasting pleating that trims the capelet sleeves and smart closing of the bodice. The skirt falls in a graceful flare from pointed seaming. Flat crepe, dimity, lawn, dotted swiss or any of the other sheer crisp cottons of the summer vogue are so lovely to use.

Dr. J. S. Stewart, Dr. W. A. Sutton Address Opening Session of P.-T. A. Institute in Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., July 11.—Reform of the Georgia school code, which he characterized as "backward," was urged Monday by Dr. J. S. Stewart, director of the University of Georgia summer school, in welcoming the Parents and Teachers Institute, which is being conducted the first three days of this week.

Mrs. R. H. Hankinson, McDonough, president of the congress, is presiding over the conferences. The sessions Monday were held at Memorial hall, jointly with the State Superintendents' Institute.

Dr. Stewart declared "we must reform the school code and the schools of Georgia must be taken out of politics."

He charged that the distribution of school funds is unfair to the negroes, who are given nine per cent of the appropriations while 91 per cent goes to the white schools. The county school boards control the school funds and the superintendents can do nothing about it, he said.

Sutton Is Speaker.

Dr. W. A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, and formerly president of the National Education Association, told members of both the P.-T. A. and the School Superintendents' Institute that "sickness is not a necessary evil and Providence does not bring it on."

The superintendents convened for a three-day session with the address of Dr. Sutton. Registration followed early Monday afternoon, prior to a round-table conference in Peabody hall, led by Dr. Sutton, on "A School Program for Health Education."

The P.-T. A. institute opened its afternoon session in War Memorial hall with group singing, led by Miss Ruth Wiegand, Atlanta.

"We must change our philosophy in regard to sickness," Dr. Sutton declared. "Three-fourths of the people think we've just got to get sick. That kind of belief is halting the health education program in the state today. No one must have the measles or other such diseases. They should be ashamed if they contract it."

Standard statistics show that 80 per cent of sickness is preventable and that 50 per cent of it is easily preventable, Dr. Sutton said. "The cost of sickness to this country yearly is $6,500,000,000. We could save $3,000,000,000 of this easily and $5,000,000,000 could be saved if proper effort was made."

Personality Development.

He stressed the value of parental education and declared that one's personality is largely determined during the first five years of life. If the parents are not able to care for the child properly, then the child will have to be placed in the hands of the nurses, Dr. Sutton explained.

Those preparing the P.-T. A. program have comprehended the wide interests of the congress and are placing considerable emphasis on the educational problems of the state. Besides Dr. Sutton, other notable educators who will address the institute are Dr. J. E. Sidel, New York city; Dr. M. L. Duggan, Atlanta, and Dr. Kyle T. Alfriend, of Macon.

Within the short span of six days the university summer school will have been host to four state-wide institutes, will present two productions of grand opera, and a dance recital.

The State Music Teachers' Institute will be in session Wednesday and Thursday, and the State Federation of Women's Clubs will convene Thursday for a two-day session.

Federation Session.

Miss Emily Louise Plumley, Glen Brook, Conn., will be the director in charge of the institute of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, which will be in session Thursday and Friday.

Stressing the cultural value of music and dancing, the management of the summer school will present two operas and a dance recital for guests and students.

The operas will be fully staged by New York artists. "La Traviata," the opening opera, will be sung in Woodruff Hall on the university campus Wednesday night.

"Madam Butterfly" will be sung Friday night.

Thursday night Miss Lucile Marsh, instructor in dancing in the summer school and head of the Marsh School of the Dance, New York city, will give a dance recital in the Physical Education building on the campus of the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

Toombs-Tattnall Cane Presented To Georgia Historical Society

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 11.—The Georgia Historical Society has added to its collection of valuable Georgia relics the gold-headed cane of Robert Toombs, which was presented to him by Commodore Josiah Tattnall, probably during the War Between the States or shortly afterwards.

The cane came to the society in a very unusual way.

Harry P. Stanford, of Kalispell, Mont., sent it to William Harden, secretary of the society, after he had asked the National Geographical Society to what organization he should send it to have it preserved.

Mr. Stanford relates that the cane was taken to Montana by Dudley DuBose, a Georgian, who received a federal appointment to a judgeship. DuBose was a grandson of Bob Toombs. In the early nineties, DuBose gave it to Colonel James T. Stanford, of Great Falls, a brother of the man who now sends it back to Georgia.

The cane is black, with a bold head on which is engraved "Commodore Josiah Tatnall to R. Toombs." It is considered unusual that the name of the donor is misspelled, as it should have been "Tattnall." The commodore was a well-known citizen of Savannah and Georgia. He was in the United States navy and gave expression to the thought "blood is thicker than water" when he went to the aid of the British navy in the far east.

William Harden, secretary of the Georgia Historical Society, and T. M. Cunningham, president, consider the relic one of the most valuable of recent gifts to the society.

Pennsylvania Avenue Crowded As Bonus Marchers Dig in for 'Stay'

BY WALTER TRUMBULL.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Starting as an army of invasion, the bonus expeditionary force settled down as an army of occupation. Probably 30,000 veterans in all came to this city, but the greatest number present at one time was perhaps 23,000. When the congressional ticket home, with rations en route, was made available, a true count might have shown 14,000 here. In the first 30 hours after the $100,000 transport bill was passed, it looked as if 1,500 bonus seekers would be evacuated.

The exodus, which started with the most restless and least resolute, and with married men who wished to get back to their families, was stimulated by the announcement that Harold B. Foulkrod, a good speaker and influential in the B. E. F., of which he was legislative officer, had changed his mind concerning the die-hard policy of which he had been an advocate, and would himself apply for transportation. The movement also was stimulated by real meat sandwiches and coffee, served at the station.

Meanwhile new forces arrived from Detroit and other points. Most of them unloaded their pitiful effects at the huge camp at Anacostia, thus joining those who declare they have dug in "for duration" on what Bret Harte might have called Poverty Flat.

The offer of a loan for transportation and rations extends only to July 14 and many predict that the discouraged and ragged forces which follow the lead of W. W. Waters, toward the end of the time limit, will disintegrate utterly. To the disinterested bystander, this appears unlikely. Too many have food enough to stay and no place to go.

Like County Fair.

But one scarcely can blame social and official Washington for earnestly urging the withdrawal of these bonus troops. The veterans have made portions of one of the most dignified and beautiful cities in the world into a cross between a county fair and Coney Island.

Stately Pennsylvania avenue has growths of tents and shacks. Ragged men stand on its sidewalks, or lie in rude shelters on cots or sacking, in sight of passersby. Open mouths of empty milk bottles cry for cigaret money. There are apple stands. Signs calculated to embarrass government officers and representatives in congress assembled, as well as scandalous and libelous cartoons and effigies, must cause wonder and hilarity in the establishments of foreign diplomats.

On D street, southwest, for example, is the miniature graveyard constructed by that brown-eyed, bald-headed veteran, Raymond W. Tomlinson, and tall, brown-haired Scott Wisner, his lifelong pal. On either side of the path to their cardboard cottage, stand crosses, row on row, each marked with the name of a senator or congressman who opposed the bonus. Oscar de Priest negro representative from Chicago, has a black cross. Back of the senatorial cemetery stands a crematory. Special slabs mark the resting place of certain cabinet members. But there are also "scrolls of honor" for those who voted to give the veterans their money. The telephone number of the cottage is advertised as, "Bonus 1945."

Cited for Bravery.

Ray Tomlinson? Oh, he was with Company H, 9th infantry, 2nd division. At Chateau Thiery, he neglected to mention that a rifle bullet had punctured his right knee, and went on to capture two officers and five men. A liaison man in such sectors as the Argonne and Champagne, he ran messages under rifle, machine gun and artillery fire. The French cited him five times; gave him, as one of seven men in the war, the Fourragere, that shoulder cord in the colors of the war cross. His Croix de Guerre has a silver star. So has his D. S. C. This little hairless terrier, busy barking at authority, must have been quite a soldier. Certainly he got more medals than anyone else from El Centro, Cal.

Then there is Joseph T. Anglo, another D. S. C. man. Tony, as they call him, was with the tank corps, 311th brigade. They gave Tony his cross for sticking around with Major George S. Patten, while machine gunners tried to make a Swiss cheese of him. The major was wounded, but Tony finally brought him in.

Where is Tony now? Buried alive on a little hill that flanks Poverty Flat. Sure, right at the entrance to Camp Marks. Three stovepipes run down about five feet to his resting place. A comrade sits above him, coaxing customers, with a megaphone. Drop something in the box and Tony will snap on his flashlight. Then you can look down a stovepipe and see him lying on his blanket. He will tell you his tomb is just big enough to turn around in, and constructed like a bombproof of the late war. Through the stovepipes, friends lower food and drink. The megaphone man complains bitterly of visitors' lack of trust. They go snooping in the adjoining tent and even in the shubbery of the hillside, looking for the mouth of a secret tunnel. Anglo has wife and eight-year-old daughter waiting in Camden, but he is not going home yet. He figures to remain in his present quarters for some time.

Living Underground.

"Tell the world," he says, "that a D. S. C. man is lying below ground to make money to pay taxes on a home above ground."

In a tent adjacent to Tony's temporary tomb live two more D. S. C. men. One, Jack Sullivan, is a reporter for the B. E. F. News. Sullivan is the fellow in the golf pants and blue baseball cap. He is only 32, which means he enlisted at 15. Pretty young, but he won the cross for valor.

At various times there have been several D. S. C. men with the bonus forces. Pennsylvania furnished Russell M. Shepherd, of Pittston, and E. J. Puchajda, of Heidleberg.

Edgar B. Reeves, of Seattle, won not only the Croix De Guerre and D. S. C., but also the Medal Militaire. Mark Shahian, of Jackson Heights, has the Croix De Guerre and the Distinguished Service Cross. Arthur Barry, of Boston, has the Croix De Guerre with two stars, and Walter Koch, of Rensselaer, has the Croix De Guerre with one star.

Over with the "Hell's Kitchen" detachment, from West 23rd street, New York, you will find Sergeant Edward Rooney of the old Sixty-ninth. He is the one who, when he takes his cap off, looks like a fire.

"Sure," he says, "they pinned it on me at Remarque, Germany. Father Duffy, General Douglas McArthur and I all were decorated the same day. But," says the sergeant, "you can't eat a D. S. C. If you happen to see Colonel Bill Donovan or Colonel Alex Anderson you might mention that there isn't a cigaret in this outfit."

Sergeant Rooney looks as chipper as a sparrow and as wise as an owl, utterly belying what another man, who shall be nameless, with a string of ribbons across his chest, said.

"Yes," he remarked, "somewhere or other, we all have citations, and a medal to pin on our coat. Here, in a shabby street of memory, it gives us some sort of a thrill to hear a bugle call again, to make a pretense at drill; but we are out of step with life. Something left over from the war, a lot of us are a little 'psyco.' I am myself."

SENATE CONFEREES AGREE ON ARMY BILL

Group Opposes Provision Eliminating 2,000 Officers From Army Rolls.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Senate conferees today agreed to the army appropriation bill as written by the house with the exception of the provision eliminating 2,000 officers from the army rolls, and two other matters of relative unimportance.

A report was made to the house this afternoon by Representative Collins, of Mississippi, one of the conferees, who said he would call it up for consideration tomorrow.

"I have no doubt," said Mr. Collins, after he had left the floor, "that the army appropriation bill will be passed by congress before adjournment tomorrow. It is my hope that the senate conferees will, at least, compromise with us and accept a provision calling for the elimination of 1,000 officers. If this is done, the other minor controversial matters can be disposed of without an hour's delay."

Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, while not a conferee, has taken a keen interest in the progress of the bill. He said that "it is earnestly believed on this side that an agreement will be had tomorrow."

It was pointed out by members of the military affairs committees of both senate and house that even if the bill does not become law, the war department will not be financially embarrassed because they can expend the same amount as was provided by congress for the fiscal year just ended, and then ask congress to include the expenditure in a deficiency appropriation bill.

Mercury Reaches 91; Drop Seen for Today

Monday's sweltering temperatures came within two degrees of pushing the mercury higher than it has been this year. The high reading was 91, recorded at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At noon the thermometer read 88; at 1 o'clock, 90; at 2 o'lock, 90, and at 3 o'clock, 91. By 4 o'clock the heat had receded to 90, and continued a gradual descent through the night.

Intermittent breezes tended to keep Monday's temperatures from rising higher than they were, according to Arthur H. Scott, of the United States weather bureau, who predicted Monday that this afternoon will be cooler with a probable maximum of 88 degrees. He said there were no signs of rain.

Monday's minimum was 75, and today's temperatures expected to run from 74 to 88. The record temperature for this year was recorded June 23, when the mercury rose to 93 degrees.
